Dump gets Cullen secret papers

OTTAWA (CP) — A truckload of government documents from defeated Employment and Immigration Minister Bud Cullen's office has been discovered at a local dump.

In a front-page story today, The Citizen says Cullen and his staff ferreted through the piles early Saturday morning, then he told department security officials that he wanted the remainder burned or buried.

However, Citizen reporters, tipped that Cullen was at the Howard Rump Sand and Gravel pit at nearby Carp where the material was dumped, made off with several bags of documents.

Among the material was:

—A confidential 1976 exchange of letters between Cullen and former solicitor-general Warren Allmand concerning RCMP co-operation with the revenue department to fight organized crime. The exchange was the basis of testimony at royal commission hearings into RCMP wrongdoings.

—Applications by potential immigrants for landed status, and letters explaining that some could not qualify because of criminal records.

After going through the documents, reporters from the newspaper handed them over to police.

Reporters found several bags of shredded documents, piles of unused stationery, airline tickets and immigration department spending information.

One document was called The Garbage Book, which describes how to save energy and money by throwing less away.

Backlash from Nigerian curbs on tankers

EARLY CASUALTY of the Swiftsure sailing classic, the 28-foot sloop Moi-Tivator, owned by David Moe of the Port Angeles Yacht Club, heads for Victoria after being dismasted before her race started. Entered in the smaller Juan de Fuca race, she was trying to round a navy committee boat on port tack. When she rounded the bow she couldn't see the 36-foot Swiftsure racer Mukluks, owned by H. Buckley of the Bellingham Yacht Club, bearing down on her on a starboard tack. There was no time for either boat to avoid a collision. The Mukluks received some damage but was able to carry on.

U.S. oil in new danger

Times News Services

Nigeria, the United States' second largest source of foreign oil, has broadened boycott restrictions in a move that could trigger another U.S. oil supply crisis, Petroleum Intelligence Weekly reported today.

Nigeria, which exports about 1.1 million barrels of oil daily to the United States, has tightened boycott measures against South Africa, Rhodesia and Israel by imposing stringent rules on tankers that call at its ports.

The new rules prohibit tankers from entering Nigerian ports that have had any "contact" with the three blacklisted countries in the prior six-week to three-month period.

Nigeria is applying the new restrictions to Shell Oil Co. and British Petroleum Co. Ltd., which constitute Nigeria's main oil-producing venture.

The tougher boycott measures apparently affect some of Nigeria's direct crude oil customers but do not extend to U.S., French or Italian oil producers in the African nation, the publication said.

"Under U.S. anti-boycott laws, U.S. companies could not comply with the new Nigerian rules without violating U.S. law," sources told Petroleum Intelligence Weekly.

U.S. laws prohibit American firms from honoring secondary boycott rules designed to prevent business relationships with blacklisted countries or providing information to the boycotting nations on corporate dealings with blacklisted countries.

Meantime, Saudi Arabia has agreed to increase its oil production temporarily from 8.5 million to nine million barrels a day, Newsweek magazine said today.

The decision was made at the request of the United States, it said, "on the assumption that the political pressure on (President) Carter will ease if gasoline is more readily available."

One of Carter's top aides says the United States needs co-operation from oil-exporting countries in its fight to control inflation.

Stuart Eizenstat, assistant to the president for domestic affairs and policy, said Sunday the oil prices of the Organization of Petroleum Exporting Countries (OPEC) are a key factor in controlling inflation.

Asked whether he felt OPEC would co-operate, Eizenstat replied: "At this point, frankly, they have not shown that they are terribly interested in moderation."

OPEC prices have climbed 25 per cent since December, he said. OPEC ministers meet in Geneva, Switzerland, next month to discuss, among other things, a price increase.

Washington state motorists who worried about gasoline supplies over the Memorial Day weekend can expect to find more fuel available the rest of the week as service stations reopen, a dealer spokesman said.

'Gold fever' still high

Diamond drills seeking proof of a gold mother-lode in the Queen Charlotte Islands are continuing to turn up significant traces around Juskatla Inlet, a mining company president said today.

Ken Sanders, whose Consolidated Cinola Mines Ltd. may be sitting on a fortune in high grade ore at the remote inlet, said that regular test drills are steadily proving out the find.

Sanders says diamond drills to probe the ore body are being sunk regularly and a full-time base camp has now been established at the site.

"We're continuing to diamond drill and the results are gratifying," he said.

Consolidated crews are piecing together a picture of a vast deposit of gold-bearing quartz that may or may not be rich enough to warrant a major mining operation.

Sanders said that a decision will likely be made in the very near future on whether or not to go ahead with a proposed massive open-pit mine.

"We're looking at that now. It's tempting to consider doing it right now ... some people might consider that jumping the gun, but you could diamond drill forever."

Sanders, who got his knuckles rapped earlier this year for what the Vancouver Stock Exchange (VSE) called "higly promotional statements", is as enthusiastic as ever about the Charlotte gold.

"I think we've gotta helluva winner here," says Sand-

Pearce Arrow duels to win

By PAT DUFOUR
Times Staff

Winner of this year's blustery Swiftsure sailing classic and the coveted Swiftsure Trophy is the 35-foot sloop The Pearce Arrow, skippered by Ken Pearce of the Royal Vancouver Yacht Club.

Racing in the International Offshore Rule section, she went over the finish line at 12.33 p.m. Sunday.

She won by a scant 3½ minutes. Greg Oliver's 36-foot Distant Drummer of the Royal Victoria Yacht Club, finished before her but the time allowance she had to give the Vancouver boat lost her the race by the short time period.

Oliver won his division in both 1974 and 1976. This was his sixth Swiftsure.

Pearce and Oliver have been neck and neck in such races as the Southern Strait of Georgia.

First boat to finish in the gruelling 49th annual Swiftsure was Lol Killam's 73-foot ketch Graybeard of the Royal Vancouver Yacht Club. She crossed the line at 10.11 a.m. Sunday, capturing the City of Victoria Trophy.

Champagne toast aboard Greybeard

It was the third time for Graybeard as the first boat home. This year she had to settle for one trophy while in 1973 and 1974 she swept the field, being the over-all winner, first boat home, first to round the Swiftsure mark and first in her division.

Throughout the 136.2 mile race Graybeard had fought a duel with the 12-metre Weatherly, owned by Lynn Sommers and Alan Buchan of the Tacoma Yacht Club.

Weatherly, which won the America's Cup in 1962, beat Graybeard around the Swiftsure mark by one minute at 9.08 p.m. Saturday but was half a mile behind Graybeard when the Vancouver boat reached Race Passage under spinnaker on the homeward leg.

Killam chose to sail inside the Race while Weatherly went outside looking for extra wind that never came.

Graybeard's crew made almost 40 sail changes in less than two hours in order to keep her moving.

A record fleet of 409 boats took part in Swiftsure and the smaller 75.6-mile Juan de Fuca race but the punishing gale-force winds that raached 57 knots at times took their toll.

A total of 108 boats were forced to withdraw, some dismasted in collisions, others with rudder and other gear failure.

For the first time in Swiftsure history one boat sank but there was no loss of life.

Sailing up the Strait of Juan de Fuca on Saturday, east of Pillar Point on the Washington side, W. F. Hester's 42-foot sloop Zuben'Ubi II of Seattle's Corinthian Yacht Club collided with G. Ross's 52-foot ketch Dorade of the Seattle Yacht Club.

The force of the collision was so great that a three-by-one foot hole was punched into the hull of Zuben'Ubi

Gold price climbs $5 to $275

LONDON (AP) — Gold rose almost $5 an ounce and hit a record $275.125 at mid-morning trading in Zurich today. The U.S. dollar also strengthened.

The opening quote for gold in Zurich was $272.125 an ounce, up from the previous high of $270.625 Friday. It then continued climbing.

Gold has risen more than $50 an ounce in the last month and dealers attribute it to the oil shortage, inflation, currency uncertainties and a shortage of gold on the market because of a reduction in sales by the International Monetary Fund and the U.S. Federal Reserve Board.

22 Belfast buses blasted by bombs

BELFAST (AP) — Twenty-two municipal buses were blown up in a bomb attack Sunday night, police reported today.

They said four armed and masked men held up an employee at the Ardoyne bus depot in northern Belfast and cleared the area before placing bombs on the buses.

Nine bombs exploded detroying 10 buses and damaging another 11, police said. They estimated that total damage was about £250,000 ($600,000).

Police said no one was injured.

On Saturday, the Provisonal wing of the Irish Republican Army (IRA) claimed responsibility for two bomb blasts at a Belfast rail terminal and another explosion on a passenger train running between Belfast and Londonderry.

Police said more than 100 passengers on the train escaped injury when they fled.

The Roman Catholic Provisionals have conducted regular attacks on Northern Ireland's rail network in their fight to end British rule and to have the predominantly Protestant region unite with the Irish republic to the south.

DC-10s grounded for bolt checks

WASHINGTON (AP) — All U.S.-operated DC-10 jetliners not yet inspected for weak engine bolts such as the one involved in the worst U.S. air disaster will be grounded at midnight, the U.S. Federal Aviation Administration announced today.

FAA Administrator Langhorne Bond issued the grounding order three days after an engine fell from the wing of an American Airlines DC-10 as the jumbo jet took off from O'Hare International Airport in Chicago.

All 271 persons aboard the Los Angeles-bound plane and two persons on the ground were killed Friday when the airliner flipped, crashed and burned. No Canadians were known to have been aboard the aircraft.

Bond also urged all foreign airlines operating DC-10s "to follow our urgent advice" and conduct similar inspections.

Laker Airways, which operates a charter service between Toronto and Gatwick Airport, London, England, said the airline operates six DC-10s which now are in the process of being grounded and checked.

In Ottawa, the federal transport department said today that it will not follow the United States and ground DC-10 aircraft.

There are three such aircraft in Canada.

However the transport department has asked Wardair to take special safety precautions on the two DC-10s it owns.

CP Air also has a DC-10 but it is not yet in service.

The plane's U.S. manufacturer, McDonnell-Douglas Corp., said approximately 275 DC-10s are in use by 41 airlines wordwide.

The delay until early Tuesday morning will help minimize disruption to U.S. Memorial Day holiday travellers, but Bond said schedules played no factor in the decision.

"As a practical matter, we didn't think word could get out ... before that time," the FAA administrator told a news conference. He also said "the risk appears sufficiently small" that a similar incident could occur before Tuesday morning.

Ottawa 'using' embassies

QUEBEC (CP) — The federal government has been using Canadian embassies overseas to spread a false image of the country's political situation says Claude Morin, Quebec's intergovernmental affairs minister.

Canadian ambassadors have been offering their opinions on federal-provincial relations to audiences in host countries overseas, Morin told a national assembly committee last week.

Morin quoted from a February, 1978, address to the Athens Lions Club by A. J. Andrew, Canadian ambassador to Greece. The speech, delivered in English, suggests the Parti Quebecois introduced its plan for an independence referendum only after being elected as the provincial government in 1976.

A freelance reporter for the Providence, R.I., Journal, Ian Vorres, wrote an article on the address May 31 of that year, noting it had been the topic of much discussion in the European diplomatic circles, Morin said.

Vorres quoted an important Canadien diplomat in Europe as saying diplomats had "sat on the fence long enough. It is high time a Canadian ambassador speak up."

Vorres's story also said Andrew delivered the speech without prior approval from the Ministry of External Affairs in Ottawa. The ministry later not only approved the address, but had copies distributed to other Canadian diplomatic delegations, Vorres wrote.

Morin said he wrote federal External Affairs Minister Don Jamieson in June, 1978, to bring the affair to his attention.

Jamieson replied that he had not seen the speech in question, but added it was his policy "that Canadian representatives overseas offer a faithful and objective interpretation of provincial government policies."

Morin also distributed copies of speeches by Canadian ambassador to the United States Peter M. Towe and the ambassador to France, Gerard Pelletier to the members of the parliamentary committee.

He also criticized the Canadian delegation in Dakar, Senegal for giving an image of Canada "as being a vast French-speaking country."

The Quebec minister said the federal government refused the province permission to open a diplomatic mission in Senegal last year because it did not want this impression changed.

$1.5M accident award to be fought by gov't

VANCOUVER (UPC) — The B.C. highways ministry is appealing a $1.5-million damages award - said to be the largest settlement in Canadian legal history - granted by Mr. Justice Rattan in the British Columbia Supreme Court against the department and a Vancouver man.

In an action heard Friday, the court was told that in October, 1974, a car driven by Lawrence Bjornson swerved off the Upper Levels Highway, North Vancouver, leaped over the concrete median and landed upside down on a car containing the Malat family of West Vancouver.

Joe Malat was killed in the crash; his wife was so severely injured that she was left a quadraplegic and the eldest of three daughters, also injured in the crash, is now a paraplegic, the court was told. Two other daughters were only slightly hurt.

The hearing was told that a special house had to be built to accomodate the wheelchairs of the mother and daughter who both require round-the-clock nursing care.

Awarding the family $1.5 million damages, Mr. Justice Rattan said he found Bjornson 75 per cent liable, noting that liquor was a factor in the case. He found the highways department to be 25 per cent liable because it had failed to install an adequate median.

He said if Bjornson's insurance failed to provide the settlement ordered, he would hold the highways department fully responsible for the entire amount. A highways department official said later that this ruling would be appealed by the department.

A spokesman for the Malat family said most of the settlement will be used to provide medical care for Mrs. Malat and her daughter and the rest to pay for the house.

The stock exchange has twice suspended trading of Consolidated shares — once briefly last Dec. and again for a short period in January and has warned investors that the stock is speculative.

The suspensions were made to allow the VSE to take a close look at the Juskatla reserves, and to cool out the 'gold fever' sparked by stories of the find.

News of the Juskatla Inlet discovery broke last January.

At that time Sanders said he was looking at a possible open-pit operation that would see 100 million tons of ore extracted with a potential gross of $2-billion.

Her crew made an effort to try to beach her but the water kept gushing in and they were forced to take to the boat's liferaft.

James Williams's Blue Marlin from the same club, picked up the crew and withdrew from the race to take them back to Victoria.

Dorade also suffered damage and was unable to take down her main sail because the top of the mast was broken. She proceeded under her own power to Port Townsend.

In both the Swiftsure and Juan de Fuca racse there are two sections. One is for IOR boats, the other is for boats racing under Pacific Handicap Racing Fleet ratings. The latter is restricted to racing from California to Victoria while the IOR is used universally.

Deliverance, out of the Tacoma Corinthian Yacht Club, was the over-all winner among the Swiftsure PHRF boats. Earlier in the week, on her way into Victoria, Deliverance had gone to the aid of a yacht reported in trouble at Trial Island with five adults and a child aboard.

Milfoil attack delayed

VERNON (CP) — A proposed application of the herbicide 2,4-D scheduled for today on Kalamalka and Wood Lakes was postponed because the Eurasian milfoil weed it is aimed at has not grown enough.

Jim Goddard of Penticton, a chemical treatment co-ordinator for the provincial government's water investigations branch, said the delay to an unspecified date was caused by a lack of growth in the weed that is choking Okanagan Valley waterways.

"We're just sitting and watching the plants," said Goddard. "They have to be actively growing before the 2,4-D application can begin."

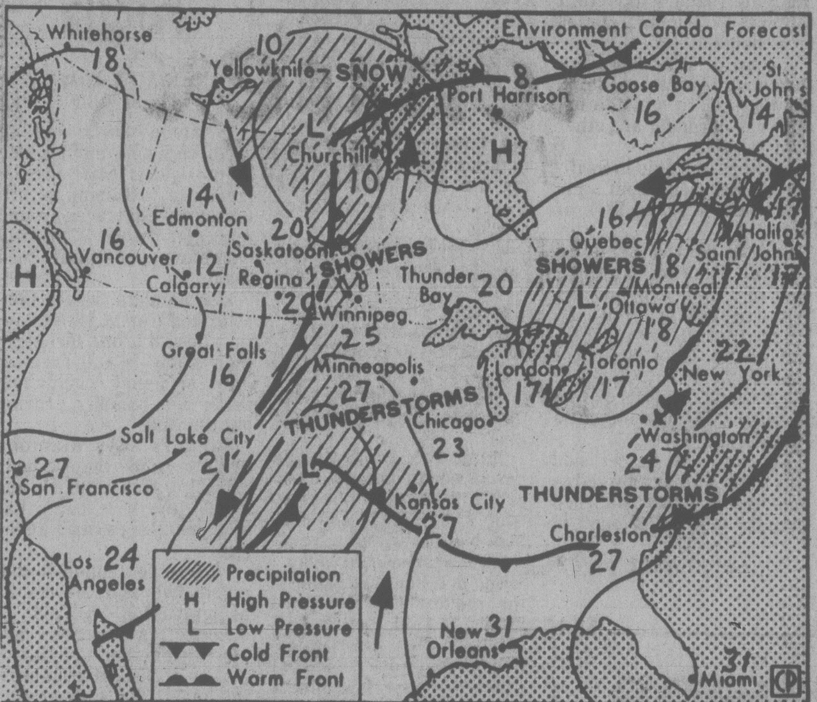

Map valid until noon Tuesday

The cold, unstable air which gave showers and thundershowers to the province Sunday is still with us and more of the same kind of weather is expected today. However, a gradual improvement will take place along the coast as a ridge of high pressure builds slowly in from the Pacific. There will be more sunny periods particularly on the north coast. Tuesday will see warmer temperatures and more sun in western B.C. as the cold air moves slowly eastward into Alberta. However, the eastern half of the interior will have a few showers again.

Catherine lifts spirits as Clark bus 'hungover'

OTTAWA (CP) — A few minutes after Joe Clark left Jasper, Alta., Sunday for a triumphant return to the national capital, the fan belt fell off his Greyhound bus.

An embarassed hush fell over the aides and reporters accompanying the prime minister-elect, who has indicated he intends to shun limousines whenever possible.

"It's just got a hangover like your Aunt Jane," replied the sister of Clark's wife, Maureen McTeer.

Several members of Clark's entourage, including the red-eyed bus driver, had been partying until daybreak in the luxurious Jasper Park Lodge where Clark stayed since his federal election victory.

Fifteen minutes later, the bus was rolling again down the Yellowhead Highway in Clark's western Alberta riding towards Hinton.

McTeer hadn't had the best of weekends. The day before, pale, weary and ill, she'd had to crawl out of a sickbed to stand at the edge of a Jasper playground watching television cameras film Clark pushing their daughter on a swing.

After two months on the campaign trail, the 27-year-old mother obviously would have rather stayed secluded, having caught a virus a few days before.

"Welcome aboard, Mr. Prime Minister," the pilot of a Gateway Airlines Hawker-Siddley 748 said at Hinton before taking the passengers on a roller coaster ride through turbulent airspace over the foothills of the Rocky Mountains.

"It's been a pleasure to serve you," a stewardess gushed, as she stood in front of McTeer holding a used air sickness bag.

In Edmonton, the party transferred to an Air Canada flight — Clark having refused to use the government-owned Jetstar favored by Pierre Trudeau.

Clark believes Canadians are tired of what he calls the arrogant style of Trudeau and want more down-home prime minister.

In Toronto, the Clarks had to wait for 90 minutes before boarding a plane for Ottawa.

That plane had no first-class compartment and the Clarks had to change seats once before they were accommodated.

The other passengers, noticing the new arrivals, fell silent until Catherine once again broke the mood.

"Do you have any gum?" she shouted to Aunt Jane a few rows behind her.

Alas, McTeer had no more gum but David Jenkins, a millionaire businessman from Edmonton serving on Clark's transition committee, handed her some.

Finally, nine hours and 4,000 kilometres from Jasper, Clark landed in Ottawa.

. . . And Bob's your uncle

Bob Wright of Stratford, Ont., won $1 million in a Provincial lottery draw on New Year's Eve but he still collects a $220 unemployment insurance cheque every two weeks. "I've paid into it every time I started working and I figure I have something coming back to me," Wright, a 55-year-old former forklift operator, said Saturday. Wright quit his job the day after he won the $1 million and began collecting jobless benefits while his winnings were accumulating interest. Revenue Canada spokesman Stephen Gow said Wright can continue collecting unemployment insurance benefits as long as he is qualified. He said the $1 million makes no difference because it isn't considered income and is tax-free.

Ex-Beatle John Lennon and his wife Yoko Ono said in a full-page ad in the Sunday New York Times that they are alive and well and have three angels looking over their shoulder. A letter signed by the couple, with a copyright attributed to Spirit Music '79, appeared on the back page of the Times. The message ended with a post script which said: "We noticed that three angels were looking over our shoulders when we wrote this."

Film legend John Wayne, unconquerable on the screen and now battling cancer, celebrated his 72nd birthday Saturday in Los Angeles with his family at the UCLA Medical Centre. Meanwhile, President Carter signed a bill Saturday authorizing a gold medal to honor Wayne, calling the actor a symbol of "the American ideals of integrity, courage and patriotism."

It was love at first sight, says 76-year-old Myrtle McNeil of Tacoma, Wash. "The minute I saw Tony (Bailey) walk through that door, I knew he was the one I've been waiting for," she said Friday after the couple applied for their marriage licence. Tony, an unemployed laborer, is 19, and Myrtle's family is none too happy about the situation.

The condition of the Duchess of Windsor, 82, is reported "slightly improved" following a blood infection that has confined her to a suburban Paris hospital for the last two weeks.

Young fans swarmed around the stage clapping and singing to the music of Elton John as the British rock star closed his first Moscow concert Sunday night. "I want to thank you, Moscow," John shouted, bringing about 3,000 Muscovites to their feet.

John Newmark, Montreal pianist who came to Canada as a British internee and refugee from Naziism in the Second World War, was presented Sunday with the Canadian Music Council medal for his contribution to Canadian music.

Actor George Brent, who went from Irish revolutionary to playing smooth screen lovers in the 1930s and 1940s, is dead at 75. Brent, who retired to raise horses when the slick-haired matinee idol went out of style, died alone at his home of natural causes, the San Diego County Coroner's office said Sunday. He had been suffering from emphysema.

John Ehrlichman thinks there is much "residue of support" for Richard Nixon and the former U.S. president would like to capitalize on it, but cannot. However, said the former power broker in the Nixon administration, who has finished serving 18 months in prison on Watergate convictions, "I don't think the American people would tolerate it."

It took Israeli Defence Minister Ezer Weizman Sunday to remind Egyptian President Anwar Sadat about his 30th wedding anniversary. As Sadat emerged from talks with Israeli Prime Minister Menachem Begin at the north Sinai town of El Arish, Weizman shook hands with the Egyptian leader and told him: "R'euma (Weizman's wife) says it is your wedding anniversary today." Sadat, looked puzzled, then said: "It's true. Today, 30 years ago . . . 30 years of hard labor."

The former employees departed while the house was repaired after a firebombing last summer, said Reno real estate agent Alex Gassiot.

Alki's holiday seltzer: World's longest sandwich

SEATTLE (AP) — A 428-foot-long sandwich, believed to be the longest ever assembled, was devoured by more than 1,000 hungry people at Alki Beach during the holiday weekend.

Dan Waters, proprietor of Driftwood Dan's Sandwich Shopin West Seattle, organized the 30 volunteers who slathered 20 gallons of mayonnaise on 214 loaves of end-to-end french bread and piled on mass quantities of cheese, salami, bologna, ham, lettuce and tomatoes.

The North Seattle Community College Jazz Lab Band played sandwich-making music and a black mutt took care of the occasional slice of salami that the wind blew to the ground.

The sandwich was planned to beat a 400-foot, 6¾-inch sandwich constructed four years ago in Boise, Idaho, Waters said.

Increase accountability

First, let us join with the ministry of health and B.C. Health Association in praising the quality of actual medical and health care provided at the Royal Jubilee Hospital. As the ministry says, "the hospital should take pride in the recent three-year accreditional which recognized the quality of care being provided and the strong medical quality assurance committee program which has been developed by the hospital." This high standard of care is all the more noteworthy when one realizes the old buildings, crowded facilities and budget restrictions which have plagued the hospital in recent years.

That said, however, there is little else to praise in the hospital, judging from the ministry-BCHA study of it that was released earlier this month. Its administration appears to be almost as weak as its medical care is strong.

The report condemns the hospital for lack of long-term (or even short-term) planning, inadequate financial controls, inappropriate management structures and outdated administrative systems.

It points out tactfully that pressures of the past 10 years have perhaps been responsible for the RJH management to concentrate on day-to-day crises rather than on a broader picture. Such events as the acquisition of the Eric Martin Institute and the old Veterans' Hospital, the introduction of the government's long-term care program, and the implementation of an in-hospital computer system have all produced "extreme pressure" on the hospital and its management.

Be that as it may, the criticism is severe. In meeting the short-term crises, the report says, "the hsopital has not made the necessary adjustments to meet the changing conditions in the hospital and, more importantly, has not met the very important need for short, intermediate and long-term operational planning in the effective allocation of resources and setting of priorities."

Other specific criticisms include: "The organization structure is not crisp and clear . . . it is not always possible for senior staff to determine who is responsible for decision making . . . there is insufficient emphasis on financial planning and control . . . there are no formalized accounting and budgeting policies for the hospital . . . current accounting methods and procedures are outdated and very labor-intensive . . . the span of control of the executive director is too great . . . administrative policies and procedures manuals are not current, not dated and have no standard format . . . excessive senior management time is being spent on computer-related problems . . . the current budget process is inadequate and does not require sufficient input from staff at the department head level . . . department heads do not have responsibility and accountability for their budgets and for actual expenditures . . . there is generally no quantitative basis for the development of staffing levels. And so on and so forth.

When the hospital is spending millions of dollars of taxpayers' money each year, these are serious faults. It is encouraging that the hospital board has agreed to move speedily to try to correct the faults listed in the report. The board has agreed to implement the plan of action suggested in the study, even as it begins to look for a new executive director to replace Dr. Archie Pickles who left earlier this year for health reasons.

The board's swift action once it received the report does not, however, absolve it from blame in allowing the administration of the hospital to sink to such a low level. It is clear from the report that the lack of planning and the deterioration in management practices have been going on for a decade or more.

It is equally distressing to note that the public, whose money goes to support the hospital, might never have known of these weaknesses if the ministry and BCHA had not stepped in. Normally, all doings of the hospital are shrouded in darkest secrecy.

It's an old theme but one that bears repeating in light of the report: The Royal Jubilee Hospital is an institution that spends millions of dollars of public money but is not required to be accountable to the public at all. The members of its board of directors are, almost without exception, appointed by other bodies rather than elected. Every board meeting is held in secret. The public never gets a chance to find out what is going on at the hospital.

The closed doors behind which the hospital operates may not be a direct cause of the administrative weaknesses that have developed. Yet they certainly contribute to such a situation because they allow both board and administration to be protected from public demands for accountability and responsibility in the spending of funds. As long as no one knows what the board and the hospital managers are doing, there can be no pressure on them to change.

The ministry-BCHA study did not examine the board or its operations during the course of its investigations. We hope that if they had, they would have put in another recommendation: One that the board develop some accountability to the public it serves by holding its meetings in public.

Mickey Mouse and POSSLQ

WASHINGTON — The current American gas shortage has been blamed on everything and everybody — the president, congress, the Arabs, the oil companies and even the sun, which extended the warm weather of last fall and provoked motorists to use more fuel on pleasure trips.

But consider, for a moment, the average American man-on-the-throttle, people like Richard H. Timberlake III of Arlington, Va., whose sense of justice and fair play is as finely tuned as anything to come off the Detroit assembly line.

Recently, Timberlake pointed out that California's odd-even rationing plan for gas, which could yet become the national model for dealing with the fuel squeeze, is patently unfair and unAmerican.

Under this system, cars with odd-numbered licence plates may tank up on odd-numbered days, and even-numbered cars can fill up on even days.

Unfair to evens

Sounds simple and straightforward, right? Not if you study the calendar. You see, seven months of the year have 31 days. The day following the 31st is the first of the month.

Thus seven times a year, the lucky odd-numbered cars get a crack at the pumps two days running. Also, every fourth year brings a Feb. 29 (another odd day) and once again, the 60 million owners of even-numbered cars have to take a bus to work.

In this, demands Mr. Timberlake, the American way?

Mickey Mouse, according to a recent article in Natural History magazine, is much more than a loveable, 50-year-old rodent. His physiognomy and how it has changed over the years says a lot about some of the strongest human behavioral drives.

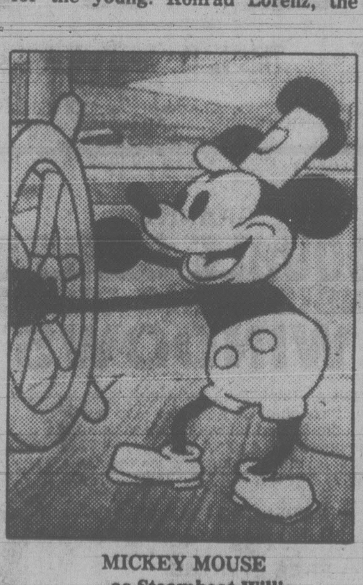
A Harvard biologist, Stephen Jay Gould, has made a study of the physical changes of the mouse since he first sprang off Walt Disney's drawing board in the 1920s, and this study produced a startling conclusion.

The original Mickey had thin limbs, stumpy hands, an unattractive nose and big ears, along with a marked sadistic streak, as anyone who has seen the classic Steamboat Willie can testify.

But as he grew more popular, Mickey's appearance became more and more baby-like. The head got proportionally bigger, the legs shorter and pudgier, and the eyes grew. Mickey wore cute white gloves. His nose got an uplift and the ears were pushed farther back on the head, giving Mickey the bulbous cranium of early childhood.

What does all this plastic surgery mean?

Gould claims that the Disney artists were subconsciously exploiting the strong human feeling of affection for the young. Konrad Lorenz, the noted student of animal behavior, has written that humans use the chracteristic physical differences between babies and adults as key behavioral cues.



MICKEY MOUSE
. . . as Steamboat Willie

Gould's theory also addresses the problem of Mickey's apparent disinclination to age, after 50 years of romping through the comic strips.

While Mickey hasn't taken on any wrinkles, the biologist says, he has been subjected to neotony — the evolutionary process by which people appear more and more childlike as they grow older.

The press release of the week comes from the American Bar Association which concluded that, based on a random sample of its members in the Chicago area: "Lawyers feel that the fees they charge are neither too high nor too low. In other words, they are just right."

This was the view of 56 per cent of the lawyers sampled. The others, presumably, disagreed or refused to respond to the survey unless they were paid a stipend.

For tax and legal purposes, the U.S. government has had to find a bureaucratic label for those American men and women who live with other men and women out of wedlock.

The acronym is POSSLQ (pronounced Posselcue) and stands for Persons of Opposite Sex Sharing Living Quarters. The problem with this label, however, is that it can apply to married couples, siblings and, ultimately, most Americans.

The state of California, which started the whole POSSLQ mess with the celebrated Marvin vs. Marvin case, has a more exact acronym: URAW, for UnRelated Adult Women.

Helping men

Where does this leave unrelated adult men?

With Esquire magazine, of course. Two bright young businessmen, Chris Whittle and Philip Moffit, bought the magazine this month and promptly announced in a two-page ad that they would devote themselves to helping "today's man [who] is searching for an identity, a context."

Society, they insist, is changing so rapidly that man has lost his place in it. "In the midst of all this unsettling change, a man is still expected to know which wrench to use, what to wear for each occasion, what wine to order, how to make important decisions, how to entertain a woman . . . and how to buy a stereo system that sounds like a concert hall."

Their debut issue contains a feature on four-wheel drives, a profile of Arthur Ashe, a gentleman's shopping guide to Paris and a short story about mountain climbers.

Articles about wrenches, winning wenches and making decisions will be forthcoming.

Highlands planning

Last Jan. 30 the Capital Regional District held a public hearing on a proposed bylaw to reduce the subdivision minimum in the Highlands to 10 acres from 45. Some positive results followed this hearing and now four new amendment bylaws have been suggested to replace this one all-encompassing law.

Three deal with relatively specific portions of the Highlands and represent sound, considered planning. One pertains to an urban reserve area of 3,200 acres in the southerly portion of the Highlands, which will be maintained at a 45-acre minimum to permit future urban development, if and when it is needed, without encroaching on the region's farmlands. Another proposes rezoning a modest area of about 160 acres directly adjoining a settled portion of Langford to residential lot size. The third introduces a one-acre lot size minimum in the Willis Point area at the north end of the Highlands.

However, the fourth new amendment bylaw, No. 100 (By-law No. 578), covers by far the largest area of the Highlands — about 11,400 acres — and is essentially the same as the old bylaw rescinded following the Jan. 30 public hearing.

It would reduce the subdivision minimum of the entire upland and future park area of the Highlands from 45 to 10 acres without any provision for the acquisition and dedication of the parklands recommended in the official regional plan or for the establishment of a system of hiking trails. The need for such trails was recognized by the CRD itself following the Jan. 30 hearing.

Population pressures and skyrocketing gas prices will lead to an ever-increasing demand for nearby recreational land by the residents of the capital region. The Highlands are within walking, cycling or easy motoring distance from the city core and the scenic beauties and recreational opportunities of this district are priceless. In addition, with proper planning the district could be a valuable regional asset as a tourist attraction.

Key recreational and environmentally sensitive lands must be purchased and set aside and a means for establishing a trail network must be found, if future opportunities of regional residents and the potential for attracting visitors are to be realized. If amendment bylaw No. 100 is passed, this will be more difficult, costly and in many cases impossible to accomplish.

There are legitimate hardship cases — mostly among residents along Munns Road near the eastern boundary of the Highlands — resulting from the present 45-acre subdivision minimum, but surely there is a more efficient way of handling such cases than reducing the subdivision minimum to 10 acres over the entire 11,400 acres are before proper planning can be carried out.

The type of cart-before-the-horse non-planning that will result if Amendment By-law No. 100 is passed can only, be detrimental to regional district residents, present and future. The amendment bylaw should be rescinded and replaced by one (or several) more carefully planned and site specific. — The Capital Regional Recreational Greenbelt Committee, c/o The Greater Victoria Environmental Centre, 101-645 Fort Street.

No prosperity

Hurray for Bill Bennett! The Seattle Times quoted our premier thusly: "Bennett campaigned hard on the theme it was his government that brought to B.C. 'prosperity' unequalled in Canada."

I'm sure Mr. Jim Kinnaird (president of the B.C. Federation of Labor) will be thrilled and deliriously happy to know of this boom, and the 40 per cent of unemployed union carpenters as well. How is it possible to have prosperity with so many of our citizens unemployed? — Howard Snider, 879 Esquimalt Road.

This year's Jaycee fair had nothing for kids, says mother of two.

Dirty, noisy fair

I refer to a Times news story (A Child's Garden of Noisy Fun) in the Times of May 17. Who dared to put in such false advertising?

The fee at the door of the Jaycee Fair was daylight robbery — $2 for what? Inside was filth and confusion. Noisy it was — so deafening that the girl in the ticket office of the children's area couldn't hear a thing you said and you bought what she handed you to save the trouble.

She gave me 10 tickets. I had a pre-schooler with me. There were no rides at all for the little ones. What merry-go-round? There was none. We painstakingly hauled the stroller over the maze of hoses and lines under foot everywhere.

The hot dog stand we stopped at was a Jaycee booth. The health inspector should have looked at that booth. There were two tables beside it — both covered with spills and slop of all kinds. We were there at 3 p.m. and I'm sure they han't been wiped all day.

Everything about the place was dirty and grubby. The machines and rides were dirty. There were no garbage receptacles and no place to sit.

Each ride had only one attendant and he had to take tickets, put kids on, strap them in and run the machine — very effecient — making great line-ups for which there was just no room. There were unguarded and ungated dangerous areas. My grandson ran into the ungated area of the Yo-Yo ride. Thank goodness the swings were not on their way down.

In short, the fair was a great disappointment to us and a true disgrace to the city and people of Victoria. A discredit to the Jaycee organization. — Mrs. Pat Davies, 565 Mountfield Street.

Minister replies

Re: Mrs. M. Peden's letter (Trailer Rents, May 1):

First, I apologize if I gave Mrs. Peden the impression that I was not interested in her situation. Despite the many demands of my ministry, I have taken the time to review her situation and discuss it with the rentalsman. I am most certainly concerned about the welfare of tenants in mobile home parks in this province.

However, it is because of this concern that I am reluctant to introduce or support legislation that would result in mobile home park owners going out of business. This is precisely the situation in her park. In all jurisdictions that have or have had rent controls, there exists the provision to raise rents beyond the general limit.

Her rent increases were approved on the basis of providing a financial return, considering the value of the land, sufficient that the park remain a viable business. Comparative rents in the area were also considered. The rent review commission set the rents based on these considerations, not on the operating statements.

A three-year lease was not proposed to Mr. Patterson by the owner. The rent review commission would not itself impose a three-year lease as it is not possible to forecast operating costs that far in advance. Large cost increases, or appreciations in land values could again discourage the park owner from remaining in business.

Although I can appreciate Mrs. Peden's concern about the $16 per month rent increase, I am sure the alternative would be even less attractive. We could not force an individual to stay in business if he felt it was financially unfeasible for him to do so.

I understand from the rentalsman that some tenants have indicated that they are satisfied with the rent and that many of the previous animosities between the tenants and the landlord have subsided. Although the rent review commission may not satisfy everyone concerned, they have attempted to balance the needs of the tenants and the landlord while allowing a rent that will ensure the park continues without interfering with tenants who wish to sell their homes.

I hope I have clarified some of Mrs. Peden's concerns and that your mobile home park is an enjoyable place to live well into the future. — James A. Nielsen, Minister of Consumer and Corporate Affairs.

No labyrinth please

I heartily endorse the well-expressed sentiments of Mr. Donaldson in the letter Keep It, in your May 15 issue. They must express the feelings of thousands of people who either live in, or visit, Victoria.

Victoria's originality grew naturally from the type of people who lived here. The very difference of this city makes it unique, and what is unique cannot be copied and must not be destroyed.

Everywhere in cities, people are under pressure by subtle or crass advertising. Spurred on by never ending "sales" the consumer is forever running on the treadmill of bargain buying in a fruitless effort to stave off further erosion of one's budget.

The shopping malls are another menace. The merchants there are at the mercy of developers who have to get a return for their outlay. What a rat race! What a contradiction in terms is an "industrial park."

Please, aldermen, planners and politicians, remember small is beautiful and let us not make Victoria another concrete jungle, a labyrinth of wind tunnels. — Ruth Robertson, 1548 Morley Street.

Thank you for the page one story in the Times of May 14, by Lloyd Sterns (Never Live With Children?).

When the normal headlines concern death and destruction, it was a great delight to read the Sterns article. More power to you — and may there be more articles of the same ilk. Congratulations! — Mrs. O. L. Foster, 402 — 1065 Burdett.

. . . and the country is split in two

By MARILYN DUNLOP

LONDON — Like a chemical that brings out writing from invisible ink, the British general election has revealed a line dividing the country into two nations, north and south.

The division is roughly the River Trent. South of it is Thatcherland, where voters swung sharply to the support of Margaret Thatcher and the Conservatives. North of it is Labor's stronghold, northern England and Scotland.

The split, historians know, has been there since the Romans left Britain. Invaders who followed — Vikings, marauding Danes — never got south of the great divide. They left their mark, it is claimed, on the north, which typically tends to vote on Scandinavian patterns.

But are there other reasons why Maggie Thatcher, the darling of the south, had little appeal in the north? Flippantly, some observers claim her accent grated so badly on northern ears that it was impossible for her to strike a rapport with would-be supporters. Others say the north, bastion of male chauvinism, would never accept a woman as prime minister.

But there are far more serious reasons. The north suffers poverty, unemployment, bad housing. It is the land of heavy industry, of steel and shipbuilding, which survives only with government support. And Thatcher has stated firmly she won't prop up "yesterday's jobs."

Labor has traditionally done better than the Tories in the north but the distinction has never been so striking. Last election, Scotland gave substantial backing to the Scottish National Party, which has pushed for autonomy for Scotland. This time the Scottish Nats all but went down the drain. They were left with only two seats of the 71 Scotland occupies in Westminster.

Their downfall would suggest self-government was not the issue that made Scotland cling to Labor although labor promised Scotland self-rule. (The Tories stood for a united U.K.)

Scotland and northern England would not thank anyone who lumped them together. They are not the same people. But the issues that made them vote alike are the shared problems of jobs and housing.

Tory Edward Taylor, who lost his Glasgow seat after 15 years, says: "There is no doubt that in the west of Scotland and the central belt, where we have such a substantial section of our existing industry facing structural decline and dependent on aid from government and its agencies, the non-stop propaganda that Conservatives would cut off aid and even incentives had a major impact."

THATCHER
. . . charity needed

The Tories fared better in the northeast, where North Sea oil has brought a boom.

Tories argued that they would bring about a climate where new jobs in profitable industries could flourish. But, Taylor says, "Such arguments cut little ice with the employees of firms like Chrysler, Govan Shipbuilders and Prestcold" where government intervention saves jobs. For them a bird in the hand seemed far better than two in the bush.

Taylor said housing is a major issue because in the poorer parts of Scotland only a third of people own their homes — fewer than in any country in the free world" and actually lower than at least two countries behind the Iron Curtain."

The Tories offered to sell public housing homes at bargain prices to long-time occupants. But that held little appeal for Scots. Taylor explains that most public housing in Scotland "does not consist of the rather pleasant semi-detached homes" found in the south.

"Most are tenements," he says, "massive soulless housing."

For tenants in them, the Tory policy destroyed hope of one day moving to nicer homes. As they saw it, the pleasant public housing would be sold off and there would be none left to which they might transfer some day. Some have been waiting and hoping for such transfers for 25 years, Taylor said.

Already the Scottish Trade Union Congress has asked the new Tory goverment to review its industrial policy. The congress asked George Younger, secretary for Scotland, to try to save jobs when Monsanto's nylon plant in Ayrshire announced this month it would close.

The union leaders told Younger to consider the "harsh realities" of west Scotland, where jobs are already threatened at Massey Ferguson, Prestcold, the Fort William pulp mill and the Marathon shipyard on Clydebank.

Labor had offered to almost triple the $700 million it gave the Scottish Development agency to protect and create jobs. The Tories would let government agencies propping lame-duck industries wither away. But the Tories will need to move slowly and carefully in the half of the nation where people believe that without lame ducks, they would be dead ducks.

Margaret Thatcher, entering 10 Downing Street, quoted St. Francis of Assisi: "Where there is discord may we bring harmony; where there is doubt may we bring faith; where there is despair may we bring hope."

In the "Nation of the North" where harmony, faith and hope are most badly needed, they hope she will not forget her fervent plea on the day she became prime minister.

They also hope that to faith and hope she may alter her policies to add charity.

Britain: The toffs are back in charge

By SIMON HOGGART
Manchester Guardian

Considering that Mrs. Thatcher is supposed to head a radical, even revolutionary, government the social background of her new cabinet has an extraordinarily dated air. These are precisely the chaps whom Lord Salisbury would have put in his cabinet if they had been around at the time, as indeed their ancestors were. It was a time when a grocer's daughter from Grantham could not even have voted, never mind become prime minister.

Six of the new members went to Eton, three to Winchester, and the rest — with the sole exception of John Biffen — to a variety of expensive public schools rich in prestige. Of the 17 who went to university, only one — Mark Carlisle — didn't go to Oxford or Cambridge. Mr. St. John-Stevas went to both. Many of them are landowners, some like Mr. Whitelaw and Lord Carrington on a very large scale indeed. In other words, in spite of two world wars and ceaseless social upheaval, the country is now being run by exactly the same sort of people who were running it 100 years ago.

The fact is that the toffs are back in charge. The real toffs that is, not the rag-bag of smart young men with City connections who get so many Tory nominations these days, not the amiable idiots who used to sit on the backbenches regretting the loss of empire. These are the chaps who send their wives round with a basket of fruit when the tractor man is ill, and don't worry too much about getting the rent on time. They have an inbred social conscience and five years to exercise it.

Far from being battered by a ferocious right wing government, we may instead suffer government by good works. The political equivalent of the well-to-do ladies who help out at the Women's Institute. These are the men who realize that their tenure on power depends first and foremost on being reasonably decent to the workers on the estate.

For the most part the toffs are not specially right wing. There are only really four doctrinaire rightists in the cabinet: Mr. Maude, Mr. Biffen, Mr. Nott and the prime minister herself, and some of them are mild on social issues.

Some, like Mr. Walker, are so liberal on race and poverty that they have almost dropped off the edge. Most, like Mr. Whitelaw, Lord Carrington, Mr. Pym, Mr. Atkins, Sir Ian Gilmour and Mr. Prior, have a stern sense of duty, loyalty and doing the right thing. They now have the intriguing task of governing a declining industrial country with the ethics that created the empire.

Take immigration, for example. The Tories will bring in a quota system restricting the numbers entering from each country. To the right, this is a handy means of slowing down entry from India and Pakistan while nominally sticking to our promise about dependents.

Mr. Whitelaw, however, believes the quota will have to be specially high for the Indian subcontinent over the next few years precisely in order to let in wives and children. He sees no special reason for admitting white Rhodesians, kith and kin or not. The question is whether he will fight and win the struggle on this issue when it takes place.

Here this is an important difference between Tories and Labor. Labor tends to fight its ideological battle in opposition and muddle along as best it can in government. Tories, however, look on opposition as a rest period and a time for making a spot of money. Few of them do any crusading. But once in government they wake up, and Mrs. Thatcher will certainly find it much more difficult to invent policy off the top of her head while appearing on television programs as she has so often in the past.

In Tory terms the cabinet is distinctly weighted towards the liberals, especially at the top end. This is partly because Mrs. Thatcher, though a rightist herself, has an exaggerated respect for anyone with brains, and by and large the Tories' left wing is brighter than its right.

Springtime and smoke

russell baker

NEW YORK — It was a spring in the future and young Alvin's thoughts turned to love when he saw Gloria board the plane, then turned to despair when he saw her go to the rear.

A smoker. How could anyone so lovely, he asked himself, be a smoker? As a non-smoker, Alvin was forbidden by the apartheid smoke laws to enter the rear of the plane and sit beside her. He would not have done so, in any case, for he had been reared to believe that smokers smelled bad and held licentious views toward sex.

Yet it was spring and Alvin could not believe that Gloria was anything less than divine. It was a commuter plane carrying government workers from their Washington desks to bedroom suburbs in Missouri, and when it landed Alvin resolved to follow Gloria and — what? Make a fool of himself, no doubt. He didn't care.

At the airport he hailed a horse. (There had been no gasoline for anyone but sheiks for decades.) "Follow that horse," he commanded, setting off after the horse that bore Gloria into the spring twilight. Unfortunately, he was stalled in a horse jam on the Kansas City bypass, lost sight of her and had to return home with breaking heart.

Before dinner he did the usual calisthenics with his mother and father and all congratulated themselves on their wind, but afterward when his father launched into one of his favorite dinner table topics — the superiority of non-smokers' lungs — Alvin became petulant. "There are worse things than being short of wind all the time and having congested lungs," he said.

His father instantly recognized the symptoms, having once had a fling himself with a girl from Smoketown during his own salad days.

"Boy," he said, "do you know what it means to marry a smoking girl?" Alvin knew. Three to five years under the state smoke laws if you got caught. Even if you didn't, you could never bring her home to meet your folks or take her to a restaurant on the right side of the railroad tracks.

The smoke laws absolutely forebade any mixing of smokers and non-smokers, and the railroad tracks had been put down 10 years earlier to keep the two groups separated. (No trains used the tracks at that time; the government had shut down the railroad during one of the early gasoline shortages to expedite the collapse of the nation's transportation system.)

"What's more," said Alvin's father, "she'll never be able to join you in jogging six miles a day, and she'll breathe deadly poisons on you, and your clothes will smell something awful."

"Smokers are as good as anybody else," said Alvin.

"Oh, they've got some good characteristics," said his father. "I've never seen one that didn't have a natural sense of rhythm, but they don't have the wind it takes to do a fast waltz." And he took the family kerosine lamp and went to bed. (At that time the only person who could afford electric light was the president of the Universal Edison Power Trust.)

The following night Alvin did not go home, but crossed the railroad tracks into Smoketown until he saw Gloria dismount and enter a singles bar. Standing outside, he could hear the raucous coughing and scratching of matches. His finely honed nostrils could detect now and then the aroma of burning wool as some smoker within dropped a cigarette on skirt or trousers.

Overcoming revulsion, Alvin plunged into the poisonous air and approached Gloria at the bar. "Let's get out of here," he said.

"Slow down," she coughed. "First you ought to buy a girl a drink and a package of butts." Forking over $8,000, which had become the price of two ounces of bourbon, Alvin poured out his heart and some soda. Gloria was so profoundly moved that she offered him a cigarette.

"Thanks, but I don't smoke," he said. A terrifying silence shimmered through the blue haze. The police were not easy on non-smokers caught in Smoketown, anymore than they were on smokers who tried lighting up in the front of the plane or the horse.

On a sequestered balcony he told Gloria he had come to take her away forever to a distant land, possibly France, where smokers and non-smokers could live happily forever, free of the terrible laws of apartheid. "But now that the gasoline is all gone and they don't run ocean liners anymore," said Gloria, "you can't get to France from here."

"Be mine and we will overcome all obstacles," Alvin pleaded.

"First," said Gloria, "I've just got to have another cigarette."

"What's in a smoke?" asked Alvin. "A vice by any other name would taste as sweet."

Before Gloria could explain and plight her troth, they were both exposed to a heavy dose of radiation — by that time heavy doses of radiation had become as commonplace as presidential candidates — and the romance became both irrelevant and sterile. Their families had them buried together, although the autopsy showed Gloria's pulmonary system was not in the same league with Alvin's.

Way cleared for Edper to buy Brascan shares

TORONTO (CP) — Edper Equities Ltd. has met the only condition imposed on it by a United States judge and can once again purchase shares in Brascan Ltd.

On Sunday, in response to the ruling of a U.S. district court judge, Edper released a statement clarifying its position.

The company said that its statements made April 30 and May 1 indicating it would no longer purchase Brascan shares are no longer operative. It reserved the right to purchase additional Brascan shares in the future.

In New York Friday, Judge Pierre Leval lifted a temporary restraining order prohibiting Edper from purchasing Brascan shares.

The order was obtained May 1 by Brascan after it argued Edper was guilty of stock manipulation and fraud in purchasing more than six million Brascan shares on the New York market.

Edper now controls about eight million of Brascan's 26 million shares.

Leval said Edper had violated U.S. law when it gave the misleading impression April 30 and May 1 that it did not intend to purchase any more Brascan shares.

He said Edper should issue a public statement clarifying its position.

Edper opposed Brascan's attempted takeover of F. W. Woolworth Co. and had sought a shareholders' meeting to discuss the matter.

Leval said he hoped the Ontario Securities Commission, which earlier opposed the meeting, would reverse its position.

He also said Brascan's management should not interfere with a proposed meeting.

In throwing out a lawsuit by Brascan Ltd. of Toronto against Edper Equities Ltd. of Toronto, Judge Pierre Leval of the U.S. District Court said he never would have let a May 1 temporary restraining order against Edper stand had he known what he now knows about the case.

Leval found that Brascan's allegations of stock manipulation and pervasive fraud by Edper in purchasing more than six million Brascan shares on the New York market on April 30 and May 1 were without foundation.

Demand growing

TORONTO (CP) — Increased demand for the Explosafe container created by the U.S. gasoline shortage will contribute to a record year in 1979 for Vulcan Industrial Packaging Ltd. of Toronto.

President Albert Cavan told the company's annual meeting that a U.S. order has been received for 50,000 containers and more orders are expected. The containers are designed to prevent explosion of volatile liquids and gases.

He also said the company expects to complete licencing agreements for the containers in Israel and Italy and a joint venture in South Korea in June.

Margin debt grows in New York trade

NEW YORK (AP) — The use of borrowed money in the stock market is on the rise again, prompting some concern among analysts.

Total margin debt — loans outstanding from brokers using securities as collateral — has climbed in each of the last three months, New York Stock Exchange figures show.

It reached $11.22 billion at the end of April — not far short of the record high of $12.4 billion set last year, just before a steep decline in stock prices that came to be known as the October Massacre.

In that two-week slide, the Dow Jones average of 30 industrials fell more than 90 points. And brokers reported that forced selling as a result of margin calls was a major factor in the latter stages of the decline.

This forced selling can occur whenever the price of the stock or stocks used as collateral on a margin loan declines below a specified level.

At that point, the broker notifies the borrower that he must put up additional collateral, such as stock or cash. If the borrower is unable or unwilling to comply, the broker then must sell enough stock to bring the account back within legal limits.

At present the margin requirement, as set by the U.S. Federal Reserve, is 50 per cent. In other words, an investor can borrow up to half the purchase price when he buys a stock.

The margin requirement has been at that level since early 1974, when the Fed reduced it from 65 per cent. If only because it has not been changed for such an unusually long period, there has been some scattered conjecture lately that the central bank might soon raise it.

"Any change, given the current level of margin debt, would have to be up," the brokerage firm First Albany Corp. of Albany, N.Y., observed.

But several analysts expressed doubt late last week that such a move was in the offing, noting that margin-requirement increases usually come when stock prices are high amid heavy speculative activity. By most any measure, stock prices currently are not high at all.

The Dow Jones industrial average closed the past week at 836.28, down 5.63 from the previous Friday.

The New York Stock Exchange composite index rose .35 to 56.61. At the American Stock Exchange, the market value index rose 5.35 to 185.45.

GIC

Quebec's publicly-owned General Investment Corp. has reported a loss of $14,367,000 for the year 1978, a worse showing than the holding company's $4,028,000 deficit in 1977. The annual report, released by Rodrigue Tremblay, minister of industry and commerce, shows total revenue from operations for the year was $316,921,000, a decline from $347,206,000 the previous year. The corporation's Marine Industries Ltee (MIL) subsidiary accounted for most of the decline. Marine has been unable to sell six cargo ships valued at $17,350,000 each. They were built for a Greek shipowner named Karageorgis who refused to take delivery because they did not conform to his specifications. During 1978, Forano Inc. and Volcano Ltee, two manufacturing branches of the holding corporation, underwent reorganization and showed profits after two years of losses. Forano made $693,000 after a loss of $3,138,000 in 1977, while Volcano registered a gain of $874,000 after losing $324,000 in 1977. The Donohue Inc. forest products affiliate reported an $8,597,000 profit, up from $6,228,000 the previous year. The investment corporation's Cegelec Industries Inc., a manufacturer of electrical equipment, went $2,728,000 into the black after a $1,363,000 loss in 1977. Cegelec completed installation of electricity transmission lines in Iran before the fall of the Shah. Further contracts in Iran have been suspended. La Salle Tricot Ltee, producing knitwear, made a profit of $383,000, down from $461,000 in 1977. Artopex Ltee, which makes office furniture, made $14,000 after losing $195,000 in 1977. Sogefor Ltee, a maker of particle board, showed a profit of $2,837,000, up from $797,000 the previous year.

Mercantile Bank

The Mercantile Bank of Canada reported a balance of revenue after taxes of $11.6 million, or $1.45 a share, for the six months ended April 30, up from $8.4 millon, or $1.05 a share, a year earlier. Assets on April 30 were $2.6 billion, an increase of 22 per cent from the corresponding date in 1978. Second-quarter balance of revenue after taxes was $5.8 million, or 73 cents a share, 34 per cent higher than the $4.4 million, or 54.5 cents a share, for second-quarter last year. Mercantile president Robert Davidson said in a statement to shareholders that "the major contributions to our higher earnings were a 22-per-cent growth in assets and a 56-per-cent increase in other operating revenue." Other operating revenue — income from items other than loans and securities — was $3.7 million in the second quarter, up from $2.4 million in second-quarter 1978.

BCN

Bank Canadian National reported a 34.5 per cent drop in after-tax balance of revenue Friday for the half-year ended April 30, 1979, to $8.4 million, or 77 cents a share. The figures compare with $12.8 million, or $1.43 a share, for the same period of 1978. Assets for the 1979 period increased 15 per cent to $8.6 billion from $7.5 billion last year. The bank said the profit margin "did not match assets growth" due to stablized interest rates in Canada during the second quarter. "This explains why interest revenue increased only 40.4 per cent during this half-year while the cost of interest paid increased 61.1 per cent," the bank said.

Carling O'Keefe

No longer bearing the burden of losses in the United States, Carling O'Keefe Ltd. has announced a profit of $13.9 million for the year ended March 31, 1979, compared with a loss of $8.6 million the year before. Including a profit of $322,000 from the sale of a surplus winery in Victoria, B.C., the company reported net earnings of $13,934,000, or 54.4 cents a common share. The dividend will be five cents a share. The 1977-78 deficit resulted from an operating loss of $10.1 million in U.S. brewing operations and from a net loss of $10.2 million on the sale of the U.S. operations and some facilities in Canada. Sales were up 5.3 per cent to $401.3 million in the year ended March 31. The annual report to shareholders will be issued in June

Bell Canada

Bell Canada reports 1979 first quarter consolidated profits of $95.2 million, or 65 cents a share, up from $61.9 million, or 47 cents a share for the same period of 1978. Net revenues totalled $257.6 for the 1979 period, compared with $177.7 in 1978. Bell noted that "the continuing gain in earnings resulted from telephone rate increases accepted by the CRTC (Canadian Radio-television and Telecommunications Commission) in August, 1978, coupled with growth in demand for local and long distance services." Bell also attributed part of the 1979 profit to revenues acquired from the company's contract with the Kingdom of Saudi Arabia.

Cdn. Marconi

Canadian Marconi Co. reported profits of $7.6 million, or $1.28 a share, for the year ended March 31, up 81 per cent from $4.2 million, or 70 cents a share, in 1978. Sales increased by 47 per cent to $84 million during the period and the order backlog was about $85 million, compared with $70 million a year earlier. Fourth-quarter profits were $2.7 million, or 45 cents a share, up 125 per cent from $1.2 million, or 20 cents a share in fourth-quarter 1978.

Rupert civic workers settle

PRINCE RUPERT (CP) — The civic workers strike in this coastal city in northwestern British Columbia has ended but with a warning that further labor disputes could soon affect the port.

Gordon Howie, city administrative assistant, said the six-week strike by inside-outside workers was minor compared with what could happen in months ahead.

Howie was referring to upcoming negotiations involving thousands of persons involved in the major industries of the area. They are members of the United Fishermen and Allied Workers Union and Pulp, Paper and Woodworkers of Canada members employed at the Canadian Cellulose mill.

Members of the Canadian Union of Public Employees, Local 105, began returning to work Saturday, ending garbage duty for city administrator Peter Patullo and Howie's duties as a watchman and sewage pump inspector.

Their paycheques will be thinner, but they say the end of the strike is more important than the extra money they were paid to help keep the city going during the dispute.

Patullo and Howie were among 23 city staff members who dug graves, cut grass and tried to maintain essential services to this city of 18,000 residents. They were paid $25 an hour for their overtime efforts, compensation which union representatives criticized during the final days of the strike.

One union member accused city staff of prolonging the labor dispute to fatten their income.

"Why would they seriously negotiate if they're collecting that kind of money?" he asked.

While city staff made the extra $25 an hour, a figure reached after calculating a double-hourly rate for middle management salaries, union workers received $65 a week in strike pay.

There were several picket line incidents during the dispute — at one point several aldermen crossing lines to get into city hall had to walk through garbage thrown on the steps.

Spokesmen for both sides said, however, that there will be little animosity left over.

"Generally, behavior was pretty reasonable," said CUPE president Vern Movold, a foreman in the roads division.

He said he is pleased and relieved to get the settlement which will put his members among the highest paid civic workers in the province.

There will be a general 90-cents-an-hour increase, retroactive to Jan. 1, 1979, and another increase of 90 cents next Jan. 1, with outside workers getting an additional 15 cents an hour July 1.

The city also will pay 100 per cent of health care costs, instead of half, beginning July 1, 1980, and will pay 80 per cent of dental care costs.

Police chase students at Delta grad party

DELTA (CP) — Police chased high school partygoers for two hours around a recreation centre in this Vancouver suburb before arresting one person and packing off another 200 celebrants home.

Meanwhile, several security guards hired to keep an eye on the crowd at the South Delta Recreation Centre fled the scene after the high school graduation party got out of hand.

The students caused considerable damage to the centre. It was the second year in a row that Delta police have had to break up unruly graduation parties.

Compromise on spraying

VANCOUVER (CP) — A compromise solution has been reached in a dispute over use of the pesticide carbaryl to combat a gypsy moth infestation in the Kitsilano area.

Members of Greenpeace, a Vancouver-based environmental group which has opposed use of carbaryl, agreed at a meeting with city council, parks officials and police to allow the spraying to go ahead — on certain conditions.

The group demanded that an independent survey of residents first be conducted and that 80 per cent of residents favor the spraying.

Greenpeace spokesman Patrick Moore said a questionnaire will be distributed to residents in the next few days asking whether they want carbaryl or an organic insecticide soap used.

Greenpeace has suggested the soap be used as an alternative to the spraying. The soap, however, is considered less effective against the moth which is capable of destroying massive amounts of foliage if left unchecked.

On Thursday, federal agriculture department workers began spraying parks in the area but had to stop because of high winds. The spraying was to have resumed Friday, but was halted after Greenpeace protesters demanded proof that residents had approved it.

Banana boycott

BURNABY (UPC) — Members of the Farm Workers' Organizing Committee, trying to establish a trade union for migrant crop pickers, have launched a boycott against Chiquita bananas in British Columbia.

The boycott, directed against the U.S. conglomerate United Brands, which grows and sells Chiquita bananas, is in support of a strike against the company by the United Farm Workers organization in California, a spokesman said.

Sea-Bus rescues jumper

VANCOUVER (CP) — A Sea-Bus running between the city and North Vancouver made an unscheduled turnaround in Burrard Inlet Sunday when an unidentified 38-year-old man apparently jumped overboard.

A Sea-Bus spokesman said the ferry was about one-third of the way across the inlet after leaving the North Vancouver terminal when the man was reported overboard.

The captain of the vessel turned the craft around and, with the help of a deckhand and two attendants, was able to pull the man aboard.

A National Harbors Board police spokesman said it was a mystery how the man got on the outside of the craft because the doors seal in passengers after leaving a terminal.

VERNON (CP) — Increased predator populations means ranchers and farmers may have to return to the wild west days to protect their livestock, says Argiculture Minister Cyril Shelford.

And the media takes a one-sided view when it comes to dealing with environmental groups, Shelford told the annual meeting of the British Columbia Cattlemen's Association.

Shelford, defeated in the May 10 provincial election, said it was his last speech as minister.

Emotional environmental groups, coupled with one-sided news coverage, will be the downfall of Canadian agriculture, because the real logical people never get their message across, he said.

City dwellers do not understand predator control programs, he said.

Society should come to its senses and say it would "rather have a beef steak on the plate than a wolf howl in the valley."

Shelford said he doesn't blame Environment Minister Rafe Mair for the moratorium on wolf poisoning because pressure groups have backed Mair against the wall.

Shelford also said that writers such as Farley Mowatt, author of Never Cry Wolf, create a false impression about wolves in the minds of the public.

He criticized teaching programs in schools which make Never Cry Wolf required reading, saying this creates a false picture in the minds of students and will damage wildlife and ranching throughout North America in the future.

Shelford also said B.C. agriculture production is different from other parts of Canada and government policies must reflect this difference.

"We know as well as anyone that our planning and the design of our programs must take into full acount what is happening elsewhere in Canada, in North America and even on world markets," Shelford said.

'Trident monster' mask of protester

VANCOUVER (CP) — About 200 persons demonstrated on the weekend against the establishment of a Trident nuclear submarine base at Bangor, Wash., and said trepassing violations that have led to arrests in the past will be continued.

Led by a protester in a skeleton mask, the demonstrators marched through downtown Vancouver carrying a makeshift "Trident monster." They passed by the U.S. consulate and later held a rally with speeches in Stanley Park.

The demonstration was organized by the Pacific Life Community, a group which has been involved in protests at the Bangor base, about 140 kilometres south of Vancouver, and which has had some of its members arrested in previous confrontations.

The protestors said the Trident submarines, which carry 24 missiles each, are powered by nuclear reactors similar in design to that involved in the recent radiation leakage at Three Mile Island, Pa.

Submarines leaving the Bangor base would have to travel through Canadian waters in the Strait of Juan de Fuca off Vancouver Island, creating the danger of leakage near the shores of British Columbia, the group said in a news release.

Flight to Frisco flops

VANCOUVER (CP) — A Surrey businessman who faces sentencing in provincial court on charges of fraud and possession of stolen property, was arrested Sunday in San Francisco after disembarking from a flight from Vancouver.

RCMP said Sunday that an officer saw Steven MacGuire boarding a jet Sunday in Vancouver with a companion. He said that police in San Francisco were contacted, and MacGuire was arrested there.

The spokesman said that a condition of MacGuire's bail was that he not leave the area.

MacGuire was returned to Vancouver Sunday night.

He pleaded guilty to the charges May 14 and is to be sentenced Thursday. A codefendant in the case, Walter Link, was sentenced May 17 to three years in prison.

MacGuire and Link, along with former Surrey mayor Ed McKitka, were charged following a lengthy investigation by the RCMP's commerical crime squad.

During MacGuire's and Link's trials, court was told the two had discussed the disposition of stolen property from the $1 million robbery of the Vancouver Safety Deposit company vaults in January, 1978.

Nuclear-powered U.S. sub visits

The American nuclear-powered submarine USS Tautog is making a routine rest and recreation visit to CFB Esquimalt.

She arrived here Saturday and is due to depart on Tuesday.

One of 37 Sturgeon class attack submarines, she is powered by a pressurized water-cooled nuclear reactor which drives two steam turbines, connected to one shaft. She is capable of 20 knots on the surface and 30 knots submerged.

She is 292 feet in length, has a 32 feet beam and draws 26 feet.

She is commanded by Cmdr. C.A. McNeill and has a complement of 11 other officers and 95 men.

She will not be open to the public.

Self-help legal book queried

NORTH VANCOUVER (CP) — A Vancouver lawyer says firms that attempt to save fees by handling their own incorporation can run into problems.

George Piggott told the annual meeting of the British Columbia Chamber of Commerce that some persons are using a $10 do-it-yourself book to incorporate their businesses, thereby hoping to save fees charged by lawyers and chartered accountants.

However, the economy move causes more problems than it solves, he said, because such things as the filing of annual reports, tax records and other required documentation are often overlooked.

Piggott also said he thinks the lawyer-client relationship in small business is not as good as it should be.

He advised prospective businessmen to think out a venture well, then get professionals to set it down in writing.

Nigeria broadens oil boycott measures close down and enjoy the weekend like everyone else because they know they can still sell all their gas for May," Bill Victory, president of the 600-member Evergreen Service Association, said Sunday.

Victory said there will be normal days of gas supply for the rest of the month.

The Washington State Patrol reported Sunday that traffic was lighter than last Memorial Day and waiting lines for gas were not excessive.

Gasoline has become a big lure in drawing Americans to Mexican border towns. Prices are cheaper and gasoline is available, at least for now.

Americans also are crossing into Canada for gasoline, but with the possible exception of Windsor, north of Detroit, the number does not seem as great as in Tijuana. And — what with the differences in currency and the size of gallons sold — the savings are not so clear.

The pumps at one station in downtown Tijuana advertise regular gasoline for 46 cents a gallon and premium for 67 cents. Ten minutes away, in San Diego County, a National City dealer was charging more than 90 cents for regular and premium.

Members of the Independent Truckers Association will rally at diesel pumps across Colorado at midnight Wednesday as part of a national protest against soaring fuel prices, a spokesman reports.

The truckers will park their rigs in front of diesel pumps and block other drivers from obtaining fuel, he said. He declined to estimate how many truckers will participate or which stations will be targeted for the protest.

In Santa Ana, Calif., four men kidnapped the driver of a gasoline tanker truck Saturday and stole the tanker's 8,750 gallons.

Police said James Walker was making a delivery to a service station when he was accosted by an armed man who ordered him out of the truck and into a van.

Three men drove around with Walker in the van for several hours before dropping him off. A fourth man drove away in the tanker, police said.

The empty tanker was located in Los Angeles.

U.S. grounds DC-10s for engine bolt checks

The inspection ordered by the FAA requires mechanics to remove the bolt attaching the DC-10s wing engines and either replace the bolt or test it for possible cracks. The procedure takes several hours.

Bond said aircraft can operate without the inspection through today, but that most airlines operating the DC-10s have already begun inspecting them without waiting to be ordered to do so.

Only those aircraft that have not been inspected already will be affected by the grounding order, he said.

Elwood Driver, vice-chairman of the U.S. National Transportation Safety Board (NTSB), said Sunday that the board voted unanimously to recommend that engine-support systems on all DC-10s be inspected immediately.

The inspection calls followed the recovery Sunday of the three-inch bolt, part of the load-bearing assembly that held an engine to the wing of the plane. Safety board investigators using metal detectors found the bolt about 2,400 metres down the runway, Driver said.

A fatigue crack in the bolt caused the engine to drop from the left wing on takeoff, officials said. "We know it (the bolt) had been cracked for some time," Driver said.

Driver said earlier that records were being flown to Chicago from Tulsa, Okla., where the plane underwent inspection in March. He said the broken bolt would have been among the parts treated with a dye to show cracks.

Meanwhile, a macabre twist to the crash story came with the disclosure that a closed-circuit television camera may have given passengers aboard the ill-fated American Airlines Flight 191 a cockpit-eye view of their 45-second journey to death, an airline official says.

Mary Rose Noel, an airline official, said the plane was equipped with a television camera mounted behind the captain's shoulder, allowing passengers to get a cockpit view of the takeoff.

Passengers normally can see the takeoff on television monitors and hear conversation between the cockpit crew and the control tower.

All the fun of the forces

Bright but blustery skies shone over HMC Dockyard Saturday for some 6,500 visitors to Armed Forces Day air, sea and land displays.

High winds did nothing to disturb the program of demonstrations but caused some aircraft to divert briefly to watch out for a yacht in distress in Juan de Fuca Strait.

Jet and maritime patrol aircraft from CFB Comox found their low passes rough because of air turbulence.

"At 200 feet it was a bit bumpy," a spokesman said.

Two surface demonstrations were wiped out for logistic reasons. Mortar firing and demolition divers had been scheduled for the harbor, the latter cancelled due to the arrival of a nuclear submarine coinciding with the close of events.

Three harbor ferries plied between Dockyard and Naden with consistently full loads of visitors, but the most popular offering was a realistic shoot-em-up for riders of jeeps and armoured personnel carriers from Princess Patricia's Canadian Light Infantry.

Soldiers firing blank ammunition jumped out of concealment to ambush vehicles as they approached. Youngsters loved it.

Delays could cost hunters gun tags

Hunters thinking about buying new guns this fall may be in for a disappointment if they delay too long in applying for a firearms acquisition certificate, B.C.'s firearms control officer says.

Lorne Newson said in an interview he fears there could be such a rush for certificates that police forces and his office won't be able to process all the applications in time for the hunting season which opens in the fall.

"There could be a lot of first-time hunters who may end up missing the season entirely," he said.

Newson said hunters should arrange to get certificates well in advance to avoid creating a big backlog.

Applications must be made in person at the police department serving the area in which the applicant resides.

After officers check out the applicant for possible criminal record or history of mental illness, the forms are then forwarded to the firearms control office for final processing.

Normally the procedure takes about a week.

Newson said about 9,000 certificates have been issued in B.C. since the federal gun control legislation went into effect on Jan. 1.

That represents less than 20 per cent of the 50,000 to 75,000 certificates he expects will be issued in the province before the year is out.

Only 25 applicants have been refused to date. Those who have a past record of violence, either criminal or mental, are not eligible to receive certificates.

Newson compared the certificates to a driver's licence. They are essential for anyone buying a firearm but not necessary for a person who already owns a rifle or shotgun provided the weapon does not fall under a restricted class.

The certificates are good for five years and during that time a person may buy any number of approved sporting rifles or shotguns he wishes.

The penalities are stiff for those who ignore the requirement.

Anyone who sells, barters, gives, lends, transfers or delivers a firearm to someone who hasn't a certificate is guilty of an indictable offence punishable by up to two years in prison.

There have been no prosecutions so far in B.C.

Meanwhile the 1,450 weapons turned over to police in B.C. during last fall's federal amnesty program remain in storage at an undisclosed location in Victoria.

Newson said the majority of the weapons will be destroyed.

Victoria to host Chamber meeting

The city's application to host the event beat a rival bid from Prince George at the 1979 convention which started in Vancouver Friday, the Victoria chamber's manager said today.

Brian Small said delegates from the 125 chambers of commerce across the province are excited about the redevelopment now taking place in the capital city, including improvements to the Inner Harbor and the restoration of the Crystal Garden.

"Everyone wants to see how Victoria is going to look a couple of years down the road," he added.

Victoria last hosted the convention in 1977. Next year's meeting will be held in Kelowna.

Young burglars caught in the act

The boys, aged 13 and 14, are to appear in family court charged with breaking and entering with intent.

A police spokesman said a resident in the apartment block saw two youths jimmy open a back door to an adjacent suite and alerted police at 10:19 p.m.

Officers caught one suspect inside the apartment and the other on the street nearby.

Weekend mishaps claim two lives

A young Colwood boy and an elderly Oak Bay woman are dead after separate weekend accidents in the Greater Victoria area.

The 81-year-old woman died early today from injuries received in a traffic mishap at Foul Bay and Fort Saturday afternoon.

The boy drowned Saturday while on a fishing trip with his uncle.

Police said Mrs. Winifred Kinnell, of 211-2230 Cadboro Bay Road, was crossing at the intersection when she was struck by a car driven by Lance Lucas, 58, of 2192 Cranmore.

The accident occurred at about 3 p.m.

Mrs. Kinnell died in Royal Jubilee Hospital at 2:33 a.m.

The boy was on a weekend camping trip to tiny Crabapple Lake seven miles northeast of Sooke when he fell from a boat.

RCMP said the boy was flyfishing with his uncle, Dennis Perry, 26, of Victoria when their seven-foot homemade plywood boat overturned throwing them both into the water about 30 feet from shore.

A Sooke RCMP spokesman said the boy got caught up in the fishing line and a rope attached to the boat's anchor.

The boy tried to free himself but the more he thrashed, the tighter the line and rope wrapped around his body and he was gradually pulled under the surface.

The uncle attempted to reach him but being a nonswimmer had to cling to the side of the boat until rescued by other campers at the lake.

The mishap occurred at about 3:30 p.m.

RCMP divers located the boy's body at 2 p.m. Sunday.

The police spokesman said the boy, who was camping at the lake with several other members of his family including his father, John, had taken a life preserver with him in the boat but didn't wear it.

Coroner Roy Girling has ordered an autopsy but is undecided whether to hold an inquest or inquiry into the death, the first drowning in Greater Victoria this year.

Wanted to rent, smart black bear

THE WRITER-FOR-print can get away with murder. He can sink a ship, fire a forest, and juggle aircraft from hither to yonder with no expenditure other than the investment of imagination. But when he turns to writing for television, he makes an immediate and dismaying discovery.

Props cost. In fact, they cost like the very devil!

Early in my association with The Beachcombers, CBC's top-rated action-adventure series, I was made aware of this fact. The show I was working on called for the appearance on camera of two steers.

The script came up for discussion. We toiled our way to the passage in which the steers turned up. At this point, a slight frown grooved the producer's forehead. He tapped the script-page.

"Why two steers?" he demanded. "Why not just one?"

"Well," I said, "I thought two steers would be more impressive."

"One steer," the producer said firmly. Then, as a sop, he added, "We'll make it a big one."

It is not enough that the television writer be constantly aware that the camera is looking over his shoulder. In these days of sternly-restricted budgets, he must also proceed with a wary eye on the cost sheet.

He learns, for instance, that once an extra opens his mouth on the set, he becomes an actor, and automatically commands a higher pay rate. And if he speaks more than a strictly limited number of words, that rate rises sharply.

I learned this at another of those grueling story conferences. Again the producer's frown, followed by the pained tapping with a forefinger.

"This character here," said the producer. "For the bit part he plays, he seems awfully gabby."

I scanned the disputed section. It didn't seem to me that the character in question was unduly windy. I said as much.

"That's not the point," the script consultant explained patiently. "If you can keep him down to seven words, you'll save us dollars."

I pared the dialogue down to five words, and pieced the utterance out with some miming.

Temperament, I should point out, is a commodity that a working professional writer can afford only in rare and minor applications.

But I did protest loud and long when the fleet of fishboats I wrote into one sequence was ruthlessly deleted to a single craft.

Finally the producer yielded. Reluctantly, he tossed in a second fishboat. It was old as the hills, and it leaked so badly that its passengers lived in fear of drowning.

Here are some facts and figures on prop-costs, as they stood last month. They may have gone up by now.

If I order up a Cessna 185 float plane, I'm gloomily aware that the tariff will be $140 a hour with pilot.

A tug-boat with operator costs $60 an hour. A 28-foot pleasure boat will run up a tab of $150 per day, and a 30-to-40 foot fishboat, off season, with operator, puts a $200-a-day nick in the budget.

The going rate for a bulldozer-rigged 'Cat' with operator is $400 a day, and for a powderman to engineer explosions, $160 a day exclusive of explosives, blasting-wire and fuses.

But it is when a "wild" animal is called for in a scene that the bite really comes on.

I light-heartedly wrote a black bear into a scene in an up-coming show. That one small bear, film-tested and supplied by the Olympia Game Farm of Washington State, carries a price-tag of $1500 a day with trainer. Had I stipulated a cougar, the price would have been the same.

It is to be hoped the bear will turn in a brisk, smart performance with no time out for refreshment, and certainly no delaying tantrums. At that price, we can't afford re-takes!

Ask the Times

Q. Can you tell me where and when was the world's first power station built? J.B.

A. At Holborn Viaduct, in London, England, in 1882.

Q. Can you tell me the mailing address for the Jersy Wildlife Conservation Trust, founded by Gerald Durrell? L.J.

A. Jersy Wildlife Trust, Les Augres Manor, Trinity, Jersey, Channel Islands.

Q. What happened to the pilchard runs of 40 years ago on the B.C. coast? J.K.

A. The pilchard runs were an extension of stocks from California and Mexico. That is the population increased to such an extent that the species moved up the coast but never spawned in B.C. waters. Some scientists blame over-fishing for their disappearance in local waters and their depletion in southern waters, but this has never been proven.

Heritage home just headache

Moffat, who owns an 1893 house at 225 Quebec St. that's used as a restaurant, says he's been running in circles lately trying to get the heritage shield removed from his building.

He can't get that done, however, because around this city old, worthy buildings just aren't disinheritaged.

Moffat wants to see his structure lose its prestiguous designation because he says it's going to cost him money.

Maybe as much as $1,000 a year in increased insurance rates.

Moffat claims that when a building's gets a heritage designation its insurance rate goes up because repairs to the structure would have to be done with matching materials — which in the case of some old buildings could be very expensive indeed.

"Garbage," says Ald. Bob Wright, who's on city council's heritage advisory committee.

"There is absolutely no reason why a person's insurance rate should go up because of heritage designation.

"It would be unjustifiable and inconceivable for an insurance company to turn around and say 'We're going to up your rates because of heritage designation.'"

Wright pointed out that the applicable city by-law doesn't say anything about repairing heritage buildings with material that matches the original.

What the by-law does state is that alterations or repairs cannot be made without "the approval of the council."

Even so, Moffat's hopping mad.

He says he never applied for heritage designation and doesn't want it.

"If they can put it on, why can't they take it off?" he says.

RICK MEARS . . . jubilant Indianapolis winner

Rick the Racer is the name

INDIANAPOLIS (AP) — The one they call Rick the Racer ushered in a new era Sunday with a victory over the old guard in the 63rd running of the Indianapolis 500.

"It's almost unbelievable," said 27-year-old Rick Mears after overcoming the throttle-jamming efforts of A. J. Foyt and the Unser brothers — Al and Bobby — who, among them, have won nine Indy races.

"I had my hands full a few times out there," Mears said. "We had a little trouble with the tires midway through the race. We had a slow leak in one of them. But the crew did a heck of a job.

"Everything just got sorted out and we won it — my gosh."

Mears, who was never worse than sixth, watched keenly from the cockpit of his eight-cylinder Penske-Cosworth race car as the Unser brothers and Foyt, in quick succession, succumbed to mechanical problems.

First it was Al Unser, the defending champion and a three-time winner at Indianapolis. The younger Unser led on 85 laps before a cracked transmission seal ended his race, as well as his bid to join Foyt as the only four-time Indy winner.

Then it was Bobby Unser who moved on top and appeared unbeatable as he stayed ahead until 18 laps from the end of the 200-lap event. That's when his dreams of a third Indy triumph ended with a sudden loss of power as his car's fourth gear broke.

As Bobby, who is Mears' team-mate, suddenly dropped back in the pack, there was Foyt, the wily veteran who has called Mears "the next A. J. Foyt." The hard-charging Texan moved past Unser and into second place.

He was a full lap behind Mears, but the younger driver said: "I knew Foyt was back there somewhere and I wasn't going to forget about him."

A murmur of anticipation swept through the enormous Speedway crowd on the 190th lap as the day's sixth yellow caution light brought out the pace car after last year's runner-up, Tom Sneva, smacked the third-turn wall. Under the bunch-up rule adopted here this year, that meant Foyt was within reach of Mears as the green flag was dropped for an all-out sprint with four laps to go.

He wound up coasting across the finish line with a big grin on his face, waving to the cheering crowd.

"There was no way I could get him," Foyt said with a shrug. "I was just glad to finish second after I dropped a cylinder in the last few laps. Then, on the last lap, my motor quit."

Mears clocked an average speed of 158.899 miles an hour and finished 48.91 seconds ahead of Foyt, whose average was 158.260 m.p.h.

Mike Mosley finished third in the official standings announced this morning. Danny Ongais, listed third when the race ended Sunday, slipped to fourth with Bobby Unser falling to fifth.

Mosley had been credited with completing 199 laps in the unofficial results announced at the end of the race. However, a check by race officials showed he had completed 200. Officials also said Mosley had recorded the quickest lap of the race with a 193.216 on his 184th trip around the track.

Gehlhausen and Steve Krisiloff switched 10th and 11th positions in the official results.

The results were posted this morning and the entries had 30 minutes to file a protest. No protests were filed.

Eldon Rasmussen, a native of Standard, Alta., now residing in Indianapolis, got his Manta-Offy through 89 laps before experiencing a broken exhaust header. He finished 23rd, while Cliff Hucul of Prince George got credit for 22 laps before his McLaren-Offy was sidelined with valve failure and finished 29th.

Janet Guthrie, the only woman in the race, was the first to retire to Gasoline Alley. Her car's engine gave out 13 minutes into the race and she was credited with three laps.

Mears, from Bakersfield, Calif., didn't get his first look at the Indianapolis Motor Speedway until two years ago. Last year, Mears — who made the jump from dune buggy racing to Indy cars — got into his first Indy race by becoming the fastest rookie in Speedway history and earning a front-row starting berth at better than 200 m.p.h.

He ran as high as fifth in that race before engine trouble knocked him out on the 104th lap for a 23rd-place finish. He shared rookie-of-the-year honors with Larry Rice.

Mears followed up that improbable opening in the world's richest race by sizzling to the pole position this year with a 193.736 m.p.h. qualifying speed. That and the race itself were then virtually forgotten as a series of squabbles among the United States Auto Club, the dissident Championship Auto Racing Teams group and a handful of unhappy car owners and drivers — upset over the handling of a technical ruling on power boost that knocked their cars out of the race — shook the usually staid Speedway.

Beside's Sneva's bump with the wall, the only other accident involved Rice, who spun out earlier in the race and came to rest against the second-turn wall. Neither driver was injured.

The other four yellow lights were flashed for tow-ins and debris on the track.

Mears was the first driver to win from the pole position since Johnny Rutherford in 1976 and his average speed was the fourth fastest in Indy history. The record, 162.962 m.p.h., was set by the late Mark Donohue in 1972.

PARTING OF THE WAYS occurs at first-turn wall as wheel comes off Billy Alsup's car during Saturday qualifying attempt at Indianapolis. Car slip 560 feet before banging into wall. Alsup was treated for lacerated foot but released from hospital in time to watch Sunday's 500 race. (AP Wirephoto).

Cheating suggested by Unser

INDIANAPOLIS (AP) — Al Unser, first at Indy in 1978 and 22nd in Sunday's running of the legendary 500-mile event, raised a note of controversy following the race with a charge of cheating in the race.

Dick King, president of the sanctioning United States Auto Club, said he doubted there was cheating on power restrictions, but, in any case, was confident any irregularities would show up in post-race technical inspections.

"It's just a shame that the USAC rules forced some drivers to cheat," said Unser, who won his third Indy race last year and led most of the first half of Sunday's event before transmission problems knocked him out.

"I'm sure some of the top six cars in the race cheated," he said. "The cheating had to do with the wastegate, but I'm not going to give names."

The charge was similar to those made throughout a month filled with controversy, threats of lawsuits and a special qualifying session that produced the largest field since 1933.

Unser, who dropped out of the race near the midway point after leading for 85 laps, charged that he was running within USAC's technical restrictions governing manifold pressure, but that others were not.

King said the wastegate valves of the top 12 finishers were subjected to a thorough inspection after the race and any negative results were expected before the official finish was to be posted today.

After the first weekend of qualifying, there were widespread charges that some teams were getting around USAC's new rule lowering engine boost this year. They did so by altering the exhaust wastegate to overwhelm the relief valve which was set at 50 inches for eight-cylinder engines, 58 inches for stock blocks and 60 inches for four-cylinder machines.

Sonics leading series but staying on guard

SEATTLE (AP) — Gus Williams says Seattle SuperSonics can't start celebrating . . . yet.

He knows Washington Bullets, the defending National Basketball Association champions, play best when their backs are against the wall.

"We can't relax — we have to keep the pressure on," Williams said Sunday after the SuperSonics defeated the Bullets 105-95 to take a 2-1 lead in their best-of-seven NBA championship series.

"We can't afford to celebrate too soon," he added. "The Bullets have not played their best ball yet. We have to go out Tuesday and stick it to them."

The fourth game of the series will be played Tuesday night in Seattle's Coliseum because the Kingdome, site of Sunday's game that drew a crowd of 35,928, is being used for baseball.

Williams, who had 53 points in the first two playoff games, had 31 Sunday to pace all scorers. Although he finished shooting 11-for-23, he was only 5-for-15 at one stage.

"Lenny (coach Lenny Wilkens) would take me out if he thinks something is wrong," said Williams. "I just keep shooting when I get the shot. I expect them to go in."

The Sonics, who did not employ their usual tenacious defence, were aided by the Bullets' inability to hit on their field-goal attempts. Washington made only 35 of 106 shots for a .330 percentage, its lowest of the year.

"We just missed some open shots," said Washington's Bobby Dandridge, the team's top scorer with 28. "We have to concentrate a little more and work harder."

Of course, Wilkens said some of the credit for the Bullets' poor shooting — the Washington guards were only 8-for-35 — should go to the Sonics' defence.

"I thought our defence was very good," said Wilkens. "We try to make them work hard for what they get."

Wilkens watched his Sonics build up a 17-point lead in the third period, then see it dwindle to seven with 2:25 remaining.

However, Williams said there is a tendency to relax when a team builds up a big lead.

"We have to keep the Bullets off balance," he said. "We try to make it rough, give them nothing easy. They would love to have Bobby D. (Dandridge) and Elvin (Hayes) down low and go one-on-one, but we won't let them.

"When we got the lead, we let down and relaxed. You can't do that with the Bullets. They proved that they can come back against Atlanta and San Antonio."

The Bullets made their way into the rematch of last year's championship by defeating Atlanta Hawks in seven games and beating the Antonio Spurs three in a row after being down 3-1.

Washington coach Dick Motta said his team got the plays it wanted but couldn't score.

"We got the ball low to Hayes," said Motta of his forward, who scored 19 points, but connected on only five of 20 shots.

"Our guards are basically in a slump. I've got to get them to relax and play free and easy."

Hayes said: "It's more what the Bullets aren't doing than what the Sonics are doing. We're not running. They're not really stopping us from getting our inside game. We're going to have to get our fast break going so we can open up the court."

Cooke sells Kings, Lakers and Forum

NEW YORK (AP) — The Times says sports entrepreneur Jack Kent Cooke has sold Los Angeles Kings of the National Hockey League, Los Angeles Lakers of the National Basketball Association and the Forum arena for $68 million.

The newspaper, citing a source close to the negotiations, said Cooke had sold the properties to California realtor Jerry Buss and that formal announcement of the deal could come this week.

The newspaper says Cooke's health, his costly divorce settlement and pressure from National Football League president Pete Rozelle were among the reasons for the transaction. Cooke also is a majority owner of the NFL Washington Redskins, and an NFL rule prohibits ownership in more than one sports franchise.

Jerry West, current coach of the Lakers, would resign or be replaced, the report says, adding that a successor has not been chosen.

Joe Heitzler, a former vice president of marketing for CBS Sports, will be named president of The Forum, the newspaper says. Heitzler was president of World Team Tennis before it folded.

The Times also says some or all of Cooke's two million shares of TelePrompter cable television are included in the transaction.

Blizzard blows streak to three

By The Canadian Press

Toronto Blizzard, after a chilly start, have become one of the hottest teams in the North American Soccer League.

The Blizzard started the season on a dismal note winning just one of their first eight games.

In past weeks, however, the Blizzard appeared to have turned it around as Saturday night they defeated New England Tea Men 3-1 to notch their third consecutive victory.

Calvert stole the ball from New England's Ringo Cantillo at 8:11 of the first half and fired the ball unguarded past Tea Men goalkeeper Kevin Keller.

Ivan Lukacovic scored 20 minutes later on a pass from Peter Lorimer and Calvert scored on a Jim Bone assist with 14:10 remaining before New England's Brian Alderson scored.

Bermuda kayos soccer squad

Times News Services

Canada was knocked out of Olympic soccer Sunday when Bermuda pummelled the national soccer team 5-2 in Ottawa.

It was the second of a three-game qualifying round for the 1980 Moscow Olympics. Canada had to win by four goals to advance to the second round after being thrashed 3-0 in the opening round last month.

Marishal Astwood and Bean scored Burmuda's other goals while Mike Sweeney connected for the second Canadian goal.

Bermuda coach Carlton Dill said he had expected Canada to go on the offensive and leave the backfield openings, which were the Canadians' downfall.

Canada was hurt by five regular players joining the professional North American Soccer League with members of the national youth team taking their places.

The Progressive Conservative government of prime minister-elect Joe Clark intends to follow through on its pre-election policy and establish a parliamentary committee to study the whole question of amateur sport in Canada.

Dr. Bruce Halliday, the party's sports critic, said Sunday his party has not altered its policy and intends to create "a new era in amateur sport."

"A truly national policy on amateur sport is necessary," he said. "I would envisage the committee, with representatives from all four political parties, would have hearings in Ottawa and across the country."

The Conservative policy, as outlined in a speech made last year by Halliday to the Sports Federation of Canada, advocates a decentralization of decision-making to include more input from the provinces. It also calls for the re-evaluation of the apparent over-emphasis on the elite athlete to the detriment of the concept of mass participation and a close examination of the role of volunteers in amateur sport.

British Columbia Lions moved into Courtenay on Sunday for training camp without linebacker Paul Giroday, a three-year starter for the Canadian Football League team.

The Lions placed Giroday on the suspended injury reserve list until a torn calf muscle heals, a club spokesman said. Giroday suffered the injury during off-season workouts.

The Lions moved into Courtenay with 74 players. Also left behind were Canadian running back Tony Hill, who failed to pass the team's physical examination because of a knee problem, and veteran offensive tackle Al Simpson, recovering from pneumonia.

The Lions will break camp June 11.

IN TENNIS: Unseeded Caroline Stoll of the United States scored her fourth upset of the week as she took the $100,000 German women's championships in Berlin with a 7-6, 6-0 victory over Regina Marsikova of Czechoslovakia . . . The 19-year-old earned $20,000 in scoring her ninth victory in her last 10 matches . . . In Rome, Vitas Gerulaitis of the U.S. outlasted top-seeded Guillermo Vilas of Argentina, 6-7, 7-6, 6-7, 6-4, 6-2, to win the Italian Open. . . Gerulaitis earned $28,000 . . . In Munich, Spain's Manuel Orantes beat Wojtek Fibak of Poland, 6-3, 6-2, 6-4, to win the men's international Bavarian championship.

'Maturing' J.R. finds control

By The Canadian Press

James Rodney Richard isn't old yet, even by baseball standards, but he feels he is getting ripe.

Last season, the hard-throwing Houston Astros pitcher led the National League in strikeouts with 303 — a record for NL right-handers — but he also led the league in walks with 141.

At age 29, he seems to have solved some of his control problems. In 79 innings this season, he has walked 28 — and just one in his last 16 innings.

On Sunday, Richard tossed his third complete game of the season, scattering 10 hits, striking out six and walking none in Houston's 4-2 victory over San Diego Padres.

"This isn't the first game in which I haven't walked anyone," said Richard, now 5-4. "I'm maturing, my control is getting better. That's an important part of pitching. Walks are just like hits."

J.R. shut out the Padres for seven innings. They finally scored both their runs in the eighth on consecutive singles by Jerry Turner, Gene Richards and Broderick Perkins and a ground ball.

Richard, 6-foot-8 and 237 pounds, ran his strikeout total to a league-leading 81, but he said he wasn't trying to overpower the hitters.

"I let my stuff take care of itself today," he said. "I don't try to overpower the hitter unless I need to. I threw a hard slider and a slow slider."

In the other NL games Sunday, Los Angeles edged Cincinnati 8-7, Atlanta got by San Francisco 10-8, Philadelphia downed Chicago Cubs 6-4, Pittsburgh nipped New York Mets 2-1 and Montreal and St. Louis split a doubleheader. Montreal won the opener 8-3 and St. Louis took the nightcap 11-3.

While Richards was finding his grove in the National League, it was a day of firsts in the American League:

●Kansas City's Todd Cruz belted his first major league homer, giving the Royals a 2-1 triumph over Minnesota Twins.

●Newly acquired Ray Burris notched his first AL victory with 3 1-3 innings of shutout relief as New York Yankees edged Cleveland Indians 5-4 after dropping a doubleheader opener 5-0.

●California's Rod Carew started after a heckler in the stands for the first time in his long career and Chicago's Wayne Nordhagen, normally a catcher-outfielder, made his pitching debut as the Angels swept the White Sox 4-2, 9-1.

●The red-hot Baltimore Orioles lost more than one game in a row for the first time since April 18, dropping a 5-1, 10-3 doubleheader to Detroit Tigers.

Elsewhere, Oakland A's nipped Milwaukee Brewers 2-1 and Texas Rangers beat Seattle Mariners 7-3.

Strong charge from batteries jolts Saskatoon

It might be a time-worn cliche, but it fits.

Victoria Budgets' field manager Harvey Stevenson got a big charge out of his batteries as the defending Canadian men's softball champions took three of four games in their "Super Series" exhibition set with Saskatoon All-O-Matic.

After Friday's 0-1, 5-1 split, Budgets came back Saturday to sweep the series-ending doubleheader at Royal Athletic Park, 1-0 and 3-1.

Hardly surprising anyone, Stevenson said "our pitching was the story."

It was indeed. Victoria's quartet of Andy Konopacki, Dave Ruthowsky, Mark Smith and Dave Wilson allowed three runs but only one was earned by Saskatoon.

Wilson allowed only three hits in Saturday's 1-0, nine-inning victory while Ruthowsky, with late relief help from Smith, was the second-game winner.

But the other end of Victoria's "battery" give Stevenson reason to smile.

First, there was Sonny Phillips' unexected start as Saturday's first-game catcher. Troubled by a cartilege problem in a knee, it has been decided to postpone an operation until season's end. Phillips has been given the green light to play on a game-to-game basis.

If the knee stands up, it will remove what has been a major worry for Stevenson.

It stood up for seven innings Saturday. Alden Govenlock handled the extra-inning work. "Not," said Stevenson, "because the knee was sore but because it was tired."

Govenlock, who has caught 23 of Victoria's last 24 games, turned in a gallant performance. He took foul tips on the face-mask, legs, arms but shrugged off the beatings to give Budgets a strong defensive performance. He capped it off by contributing two hits.

In addition to getting credit for a save, Smith also showed expertise as a baserunner to help Wilson win the nine-inning affair. Coming in as a pinch-runner after Carl Walker singled, Wilson was trapped off base but escaped the hot box with a great slide that took him to second base.

He advanced to third on a passed ball and ended the game by scoring the winning run when another pitch eluded Saskatoon catcher Dennis Guenter.

Budgets return to Northwest International League action next weekend by playing Woodinville and Longview in the Seattle area. Budgets will be at home the following weekend against Edmonton Sun Drillers in another "Super Series" round at Royal Athletic Park.

'Better than anyone' in golf

DUBLIN, Ohio (AP) — Jack Nicklaus concedes that Tom Watson is the man to beat on the current Professional Golfers' Association tour.

"Tom is playing so much better now than anyone in the game," Nicklaus, the badly beaten Muirfield Village host, said Sunday after Watson's victory in the Memorial golf tournament. "He's going to have to play poorly for somebody to beat him."

Watson was the sole player to handle Muirfield in deplorable weather. Some called his 69 in Friday's windy, rainy, 5 C. temperature a miracle. The 29-year-old Watson climaxed his performance with a cautious one-under-par 71 Sunday for a 285 total, three shots better than runner-up Miller Barber's 70—288.

The numbers support Nicklaus's contention. Consider these mind-boggling 1979 accomplishments:

- Winnings of more than $353,000, less than $8,000 away from the all-time single-season record he established a year ago;
- Four victories, twice as many as any of his rivals, and four second-place finishes in 14 starts. He's been sixth or better in 10 of the tournaments;
- A strong bid to sweep the PGA player of the year, Vardon Trophy and No. 1 money title for a record third successive year. Watson already is the only man to win the three honors in two consecutive seasons.
- Average winnings of $25,000 per tournament. Watson has averaged $16,835 per start since the beginning of 1977. In that span, he has picked up $1,026,956.

"I can't emphasize how well I putted this week," said Watson, who won $54,000. "My touch was very, very good, but my driving was tentative."

Nicklaus, winless in 1979, shot an embarrassing 79 before his hometown folks, which included a triple bogey and two double bogeys. His 299 total left him in a tie for 27th place, 14 shots back.

Jim Nelford of Burnaby, the lone Canadian in the tournament, finished 72—298 and won $2,880.

Penny breaks ice in rain

CORNING, N.Y. (AP) — Australian Penny Pulz proved to be the best "mudder," emerging Sunday from four days of rain-drenched golf with her first Ladies' Professional Golf Association triumph.

Pulz, 26, needed just 21 putts Sunday to put together the best round of the four-day, 72-hole event — a two-under-par 68 — and take home the $15,000 winner's share of the $100,000 purse in the Corning Classic.

Pulz's 284 total was four strokes over par but, she said, "I'm a good mudder."

Veteran Judy Rankin finished second at 286 after signing an erroneous score card Saturday showing she had bogeyed a hole that she had actually parred, depriving herself of a share of the lead going into the final round.

Canadian rookie Cathy Sherk of Ontario, still seeking her first pro victory, ballooned to a 77 for a 306 total and won $800. Dale Shaw of Victoria closed with a 78—306 for $82, while Jocelyne Bourassa of Shawinigan finished out of the money at 79—307.

Coastal in running for start in Belmont

Times News Services

Coastal may have run himself into a contending position in the June 9 Belmont Stakes with a 13-length victory in the 26th running of the $54,700 Peter Pan Stakes at Belmont Park on Sunday.

Czaravich, who would have been the race favorite, was scratched when trainer Billy Turner discovered that his colt was running a temperature. His racing plans were uncertain pending the horse's recovery.

Coastal, a three-year-old son of Majestic Prince-Alluvial, ridden by Ruben Hernandez, carried 120 pounds 1⅛ miles in 1:47. Lucy's Axe, 123 pounds, took the place by 1¼ length over Pianist, 117 pounds.

Coastal's clocking cut four-fifths of a second off the stakes record set by Counterpoint in 1951. It was the third victory in a row for Coastal and gave him a lifetime record of five victories in eight starts.

At Hollywood Park, Ibacache, the 6-5 favorite, overtook Beau's Eagle in the stretch to win the $54,850 Will Rogers Handicap by 1¼ lengths before a crowd of 31,807.

Ibacache, ridden by Darrel McHargue and carrying 118 pounds, covered 1 1-16 miles on turf in 1:40 4-5 and paid $4.40, $3.40 and $2.60.

At Exhibition Park, the four year-old mare Palica got up in the last stride to win the $10,950 Vanity Handicap in the closest finish of the Vancouver season.

Palica, ridden by Chris Loseth, finished a head in front of Very Knowledgeable and Country Kitten, which finished in a dead heat for second.

At Belmont, Saturday, Davona Dale, Calumet Farms' standout filly, charged down the centre of the track and won the $83,550 Acorn Stakes for three-year-old fillies by 2¼ lengths.

In taking the first leg of the New York Racing Association Triple Crown series for fillies, Davona Dale raced the mile in 1:36 under jockey Jorge Velasquez for her sixth straight stakes victory.

At Monmouth Park, Bold Ruckus easily upset the heavily favored Northern Prospect to capture the $27,300 Select Handicap for three year olds.

At Arlington Park, Don Aronow, odds-on favorite invading from New York, came on in the stretch to win the $42,950 Sheky Greene Handicap.

At Atlantic City, Bright View Farm's Super Spike and Elberon Farm's Megalopolis won the two divisions of the split Linwood Handicap for New Jersey bred three-year-olds.

Record triactor returns $15,440

WINNIPEG (CP) — The largest triactor payoff in the history of Assiniboia Downs race track occurred Saturday night.

A race track official said only one man took the big prize as he correctly predicted the exact order of the top three finishers.

Five winning $6-boxes were purchased, and they each paid half of the $2 return, or $7,720.10.

The three-horse combination bringing the bonanza included Whereizeem, Damion and Truce of Oman.

Whereizeem came first at odds of 40 to 1. Damion was second at 5-1 while Truce of Oman finished third at 25-1 odds.

Andys Janice shows form; Horse rears, pins Tonkin

By BILL WALKER
Times Staff

There were two items of more than passing interest at Sandown Harness Raceway Saturday.

First, for the purists, Andys Janice, a six-year old bay gelding, owned and driven by former professional hockey player Pat Lundy, proved to Island fans what Cloverdale fans already knew — that he is the best pacer currently competing in B.C.

Secondly, horse racing can be a dangerous game even when you are in the winner's circle having your picture taken. Ask driver Greg Tonkin.

A loser in his first start here on Monday, Andys Janice made believers out of the 1,502 fans in attendance Saturday by coming from last place in the seven-horse field to capture the featured Invitational pace from the fast-closing Andys Peyton, winner of Monday's feature event, in the good time of 2:05.3.

It was the eighth victory of the year for Andys Janice, Pacer of the Year at Cloverdale. He returned $4.60, $3.70 and $3.80 and combined with Andys Peyton for a surprising Exactor of $29.50 — surprisingly good in view of the fact they were the one-two choices in the mutuels and figured that way.

The victory brought the earnings of Andys Janice to close to $19,000 for the year.

The other incident concerned what is always feared — an accident at the track.

This time there was a freak accident, but fortunately no-one was injured when it could have been much worse.

The incident occurred after the third race, won by Snagel, an 11-year old black gelding.

Snagel and Greg Tonkin, the driver, were in the winner's circle having their picture taken when Snagel suddenly reared and fell backwards on Tonkin who was still in the sulky.

Tonkin managed to quickly extricate himself from the sulky and was unhurt while Snagel thrashed about. Tonkin and a groom then kept Snagel calm while he was unharnessed. All turned out well when Snagel bounded to his feet and apparently came out of the affair in good shape.

As for Tonkin, he kept his dates for two other drives for the day, Come Back Due (8th) in the fourth and Hannrihan (6th) in the seventh, and appeared little the worse for his experience.

(Just how fortunate Tonkin was perhaps can best be illustrated by the fact that on the same day in Belleville, Ill., thoroughbred jockey Mary Bacon suffered a similar accident.

(Her mount, South Ruby Lanes, reared in the starting gate and fell backward on her. Bacon's spleen was ruptured and removed; she suffered fractures of the pelvis, multiple rib fractures, is in intensive care and will miss the rest of the Cahokia Downs Meet which runs until July 7.)

Otherwise, in action on the track, Maple Hills Smoky, a striking five-year old gray gelding, gave a performance which makes him seem ready to step up in class by scoring a commanding victory in the fifth in the time of 2:06.1, just 3/5ths of a second slower than Andys Janice had turned in.

Not only that, but it was the fifth win in nine starts this year for Maple Hills Smoky, owned by D. Shaw of Prince George and driven by Bruce Haeberle and during which he has never been worse than second, having placed four times. Maple Hills Smoky paid $5.10, #3.30 and $2.40.

Joe Hudon won twice with Azar ($4.60) in the seventh and Governors Star Boy ($6.50) in the 10th to stay two in front of Keith Linton in the drivers' standings. Hudon now has eight wins and Linton, who scored on Armored Express ($7.60) in the first, has six.

The handle was $100,489, marking the third day of the first five days of the meeting that it has passed the $100,000 mark.

Racing resumes tonight at 5:30 p.m. with the next card Thursday at the same time.

PHILIP HEADS PAN-AM TEAM

WINNIPEG — Philip Delesalle of Victoria, who successfully defended his all-around senior men's title Saturday, won three events Sunday on the final day of the Canadian gymnastics championships and was selected to the national Pan-American Games team.

Delaselle, 20, was first in the individual men's high bar, pommel horse and still rings.

Jean Choquette of Montreal was tops in the parallel bars and was runner-up to Delesalle in three events.

Warren Long, a Canadian now living in Los Angeles, took the vault and floor exercises, and placed third in the pommel horse, behind Deleselle and Choquette.

Long, Choquette and Victoria's Owen Walstrom were named as other male members of the Pan-Am squad.

Walstrom finished seventh over-all and David Bibby of Victoria 13th.

Monica Goermann of Winnipeg was a little surprised as winning all three events she entered Sunday and was named to the five-member women's Pan-Am squad.

Goermann, 13, said she thought Elfi Schlegel of Toronto would have the edge but didn't let anything interfere with her concentration while placing first in the individual senior women's balance beam, uneven bars and floor exercises.

Goermann hurt her left ankle Saturday and was unable to enter the vault event Sunday, which was won by Ellen Stewart of Toronto.

Rounding out the women's Pan-Am team were Schlegel, Carmen Alie of Montreal, Stewart, Sherry Hawco of Cambridge, Ont. and Diana Carnegie of Toronto. Shannon Flemming of Toronto was named as an alternate.

During Saturday's competition, Delesalle earned a combined compulsory and optional score of 112.30 in six events — vault, parallel bars, high bar, pommel horse, still rings, and floor exercise. Long was second with 111.45 and Choquette third with 110.25.

On Saturday, Elvin Carter came up with 63 runs to help the President's XI to a draw with the Vice-President's XI in the annual exhibition match at Beacon Hill Park.

Alec Porter and Dennis Shaw added 46 and 41 runs as the President's XI declared at 217 for eight. Peter Nation (30) and Peter Howe (23) led the Vice-President's side to 125 for eight as Dave Gladders took six wickets for 44 runs.

After connecting with 14 hits in the opener en route to an 18-5 decision, Lumberworld came up with 17 more hits to win the second 17-3.

Brian Meadmore and Mike Laffin hit back-to-back home runs to key an eight-run fourth inning for Lumberworld in the opener while Wayne Proceviat hit a homer for Cosmos.

Mike Squire picked up both pitching victories, going the distance while firing a five-hitter in the opener and then collecting the win before being relieved by Dan van Gylswyk in the sixth inning of the second game.

Catcher Russ Holmes was the leading batter for Lumberworld with eight hits in nine trips in the two games. He drove in six runs and scored seven times.

Three locals on nationals

HANS DE GOEDE
. . . to play against U.S.

Hans de Goede of James Bay Athletic Association, Dwain van Eeuwen of Cowichan and Gary Grant of UVic were named Sunday as starters for the Canadian rugby team.

The selections were announced following a five-day national training camp which included an intrasquad match Saturday night at Royal Athletic Park in which Canada topped The Rest 15-9 before approximately 300 fans.

Four other Vancouver Island Rugby Union players — Ray Rogers and Ron McGuinnes of James Bay and Dennis Sinnot and Chris Fowler of Oak Bay Wanderers — were named to the six-player spares list.

The national side now meets June 5 at Toronto's York University to prepare for an international match against the United States four days later. The match will be televised nationally at 12 noon PDT.

Following the match, selectors will once again be busy. On June 10, they will named a 25-player squad which will embark on a six-match tour of Europe for about three weeks in September.

Joining de Goede in the lock position is Ro Hindson of UBC Old Boys and Grant will be playing on the back row with Jim Donaldson of Richmond.

Other members of the side are fullback Graham Taylor, right wing Robbie Greig, centre Andrew Bibby, fly half Gary Hirayama, scrum half Preston Wiley and No. 8 Robin Russell, all of the University of British Columbia Thunderbirds; left wing Spence McTavish of UBC Old Boys; centre Tony Bauer of Edmonton Leprechauns; and prop Ken Peace of Abbotsford.

The other spares are Dennis Quigley of Ex-Brits (Vancouver) and John Billingsley of Vancouver Meralomas.

Included on the selection committee were Alan Rees and national coach Bruce Howe of Victoria.

On the field Saturday, Canada led 7-3 at the half and held off some determined thrusts by The Rest later in the game to claim the victory.

Donaldson scored a penalty goal in the first half and added a try, converted by Lyndon Williams, in the second half for The Rest.

Forsyth takes White trophy

Terry Forsyth dominated the super-stock class Saturday and finished the evening off by winning the 12-lap feature race before a crowd of about 2,800 fans at Western Speedway.

Forsyth, who picked up the Roy White Memorial Trophy for winning the event, took the lead on the third lap and never looked back. He earlier won the trophy dash and fast heat and padded his lead in the points race for the Island super-stock championship.

The main event was shortened because of a small field of 11 cars, which was further reduced when four cars were involved in a spectacular pileup on the first lap.

Defending-champion Gordie Stone won the 35-lap stock car main in which 24 vehicles started.

Stone, the stock car points leader, grabbed the front-running position on the 12th lap and held off challenges by Dave Edstrom and Greg Gicas, who finished second and third, respectively.

Stone also won the fast heat and Pat Phillips topped the trophy dash.

Irish host T-men in a crucial test

If there was ever an early crunch in the Western Lacrosse Association schedule, tonight's matchup between Victoria Shamrocks and Nanaimo Timbermen at Memorial Arena would appear to be it.

Last year's champions and Mann Cup finalists, the Shamrocks are in dire straights at the moment. The Irish have lost four in a row, the latest defeat coming Saturday night at Coquitlam, 12-10, at the hands of the Adanacs.

And they are all alone in the cellar, one point behind Vancouver Burrards, two behind the Timbermen and 11 out of first place which is occupied by New Westminster.

Nanaimo, which has acquired last year's most valuable player Ron MacNeil from the Shamrocks in exchange for Bob Cool and Jim Lynch, Saturday defeated Burrards 17-10 for their third win of the season and all since MacNeil's acquisition.

In addition, the Timbermen held the Shamrocks to a 6-6 tie here in the first game of the season and then defeated the Shamrocks 8-6 in the return meeting at Nanaimo last week.

Besides, the Timbermen and Shamrocks are still dickering over the future of Kevin Alexander and, as there never has been any love lost between the two teams, it sets up as a natural.

The Irish lost a peculiar tussle at Coquitlam. They got off to a horrendous start, trailed 7-0 after the first period, were behind 10-0 before Dan Green got the first goal in the second, and were being humbled 12-4 when the second period ended.

Then came a mammoth rally which was awfully late, but didn't miss by much.

The Rocks bombarded Coquitlam goalkeeper Greg Thomas with 27 shots, but the only salvation they got was that they scored the last nine goals of the game.

Steve Buckley, who has just returned to the lineup, had five assists for the Shamrocks. Chris Hall and Larry Bell each scored two goals while Ranjit Dillon, Art Webster, Green, Lynch, Bob Cool and Bill Marechek had singles.

MacNeil scored four goals and added three assists to pace the Timbermen.

Brian Evans had two goals and five assists. Other Nanaimo marksmen were Randy Noble with three goals, Doug Angrove and Terry Bayes with two each and Peter Rushton, Ron Sage, Roger Dubyna and Ken King with one apiece.

VI 90 caught short in abbreviated finale

NEW WESTMINSTER — VI 90 of the Victoria Senior Women's Softball League ran out of time Sunday and dropped a five-inning 8-6 decision to host Vancouver Merchants in the final of an invitational tournament at Sapperton Park.

VI 90 had to call the game short in order to catch the ferry.

The Victoria team gained the final of the eight-team, double-loss elimination affair by recording successive victories over Vancouver Canadians (10-0), North Vancouver (4-0) and league-mates Stockers North Americans (2-0). Stockers were eliminated 4-3 in 12 innings by Merchants.

Sweep time in softball

Tally-Ho dropped Port Angeles Telecable 15-2 and 6-2 while Seaboard clubbed Strandlund Brothers 5-0 and 5-2.

John Barnes breezed to the 15-2 win for Tally-Ho by pitching a three-hitter but his effort was overshadowed by Glen Coffey's one-hit mound performance in the second game.

Kevin Gilbert paced Tally-Ho at bat in the opener with a double and triple in three trips to the plate to drive in four runs and score once. Ted Brown set the pace in the second contest with a double and single in three to drive in three runs and score twice.

Randy Jackson was the hero of the opener for Seaboard. He threw a one-hitter, striking out 13 batters while walking none, while Bob Wheeler drove in two runs with a homer in the fourth inning.

The second Seaboard win was recorded by Barry Wilkin, who scattered six hits.

Ray Beveridge picked up the pitching win for Elks-Athletics with some relief help from Ken Fox starting in the sixth. Bob Wilson was two-for-three with one RBI and one run and Chris Carolan hit a triple in two trips and scored once.

In Heywood Men's League play, Jack Mears Realty tumbled Ingraham Hotel 12-4 and 13-2 and Brentwood defeated Remco Office Systems, 10-1.

Dave Rivers sparked Mears in the opener with a homer and two singles in three trips to drive in four runs and score twice.

Dave Bamard went four-for-four to drive in three and score three for Mears in the second contest and Larry Brown went three-for-four, including a homer, to drive in two and score three.

Sheckter survives dramatic late duel

Times News Services

The Monaco Grand Prix is the social event of the racing season, a glitter of yacht and nightclub parties — not to mention the thunder of racing engines presided over by Prince Rainier and Princess Grace.

But Sunday's Grand Prix, the 37th in 50 years, proved once again that under the glamor, the city-street circuit is an exhausting challenge, demanding the ultimate in driver skill, accuracy and sheer courage, and in car preparation.

South African Jody Scheckter — the local hero as a Monaco resident — took his second triumph in three years, leading from start to finish.

His team-mate, Gilles Villeneuve of Berthierville, Que., observed team discipline to back Scheckter in second and set up a potential 1-2 finish for Ferrari until his transmission failed after 54 laps.

The victory gave Scheckter a clear lead in the world drivers' standings with 30 points, compared with 24 for France's Jacques Laffitte, who finished fifth.

Carlos Reutemann of Argentina, in a Lotus 79, placed third after staving off repeated challenges by the Ligier of France's Patrick Depailler. Fourth was John Watson of Britain in a McLaren.

Villeneuve, Depailler and Reutemann are tied for third in the over-all standings with 20 points.

In Portrush, Northern Ireland, two of Britain's most promising young motorcyclists were killed at a motorcycle race here Saturday.

Five others were injured, two of them critically.

Tommy Herron of Northern Ireland died after he was hurled through the air at 100 miles an hour 200 yards from the finishing line and Brian Hamilton of Scotland was killed after he was in a collision with another motorcyclist.

At Charlotte, N.C., Darrell Waltrip pushed his Chevrolet 5.6 seconds ahead of a duel for second place to win the World 600 stock car race Sunday.

Waltrip collected $55,400.

In Winnipeg, the team of Taisto Heinonen and British Columbia's Tom Burgess captured the Trail of the Bison auto rally Saturday through Sandilands provincial park in eastern Manitoba. The rally was the 14th event in the Canadian Rally Series championships.

Athletics stretch win streak to five

Victoria Athletics extended an unbeaten streak to five games by edging G and W Landscaping, formerly the Hustlers, 16-14 in a Vancouver Island Senior "B" Lacrosse League game Sunday at Pearkes Arena.

In the other contest, Esquimalt Universal Sheet Metal picked up its first win of the season, tripping Saanich Metro Honda, 15-10.

Kevin Kennedy set the pace for Athletics with five goals while Bill Marechek scored four and assisted on seven others. Andy Reid, who had six assists, and Robbie Clifford each scored twice.

Jindy Johl led Landscapers with a three-and-three effort while double tallies were recorded by Mike Yeager and Tim Craggs. Mike Beaulac came up with five assists.

Bristol here tonight

Times News Services

Peerti Jantunen scored in the 59th minute to enable Bristol City of the English First Division to salvage a 1-1 tie with Vanouver Whitecaps of the North American Soccer League in an exhibition game at Vancouver's Empire Stadium Saturday night before 13,000 fans.

Jantunen, a 27-time Finnish international who joined Bristol City in March, came on as a substitute in the second half and was the most prominent player for the English club in the wide-open 45 minutes of play.

Striker Kevin Hector, Whitecaps' leading scorer, gave Vancouver a 1-0 lead in the 37th minute after a tightly-played first half that saw very few scoring chances.

The tie enabled Bristol City to keep a perfect record intact on its North American tour. The English club defeated Seattle Sounders of the NASL 1-0 Wednesday.

Bristol City has two games remaining. The English League squad meets Vancouver Island All-Stars at Victoria's Royal Athletic Park tonight at 7:15 p.m. and plays Portland Timbers of the NASL later in the week.

Opening lead — seven of diamonds.

This deal occurred in the 1976 World Olympiad. It was played at 44 tables, but at only five tables of the 18 where a grand slam in notrump was bid did declarer make seven notrump.

The bidding at one table went as shown and West led the seven of diamonds. South won with the ace, played a club to dummy's ace, and cashed his A-K of spades, hoping the queen would fall. When it didn't, declarer cashed his K-Q of clubs, hoping to find either defender with the J-10-x of clubs. In that case, South would have had 13 easy tricks.

But although the clubs were divided 4-3, only the jack appeared on the K-Q of clubs, leaving the ten at large.

South's chances of making the grand slam were getting worse by the minute but, undaunted, he led the king and another heart and successfully finessed dummy's ten. This was now the position:

Declarer next cashed dummy's ace of hearts, discarding a spade, and then led the queen of hearts. This last play put East under great pressure. It did not matter whether he discarded a diamond or a club because, either way, South would make the grand slam.

FUN WITH FIGURES

By J.A.H. HUNTER

"See that four-digit number, Dad," said Pam, pointing to a poster on the wall. "It's first figure is the sum of its last two, and its first half if five times its last half."

Don looked. "That's interesting," he replied. "I wonder how many four-figure numbers there are that work exactly that way."

Well?

Thanks for the idea to H.J. Down, Stoney Creek, Ontario.

Maxwell Smart plays the make-the-movie-from-the-series trick

By VERNON SCOTT
United Press International

HOLLYWOOD — Secret Agent 86, the bungling superspy of the old Get Smart TV series, is back in business, this time as the hero of an $8 million movie, The Adventures of Maxwell Smart.

Good old Max girds himself once again in a battle against the evil forces of KAOS which threatens international tranquility with a "nude bomb" capable of destroying all known fabrics which exist on earth.

Scott's World

All that stands between worldwide stark nakedness and the status quo is Maxwell Smart, a thin line of defence indeed.

From 1965 to 1970 Get Smart was a top-rated series and remains something of a cult attraction. It is telecast in 67 countries and in scores of cities in the United States.

No one is happier about the return of the little twerp than actor Adams.

"He's the same Maxwell Smart — a klutz," Adams beamed. "He still uses the shoe telephone and a whole array of weird gimmicks in his fight against KAOS which is an international organization of evil and rottenness.

"Max always cops out when he blows an assignment. He never admits he's wrong — and he's never right.

"He doesn't work for his old bosses at 'Control' anymore. He's employed by 'PITS,' a counterspy network of good guys."

Instead, Maxwell, who retains his Agent 86 status, has acquired three female assistants, Agents 36-22-34 — Pamela Hensley, Andrea Howard and Sylvia Kristel.

He is indelibly linked in the minds of millions to Maxwell Smart, klutz.

"I played Maxwell so long I actually became the idiot," he said, laughing. "I couldn't leave him behind me. During the series I began using my own daily experiences for material in the show."

Doctors argue Gravol 'highs'

CHARLOTTETOWN (CP) — A drug addiction expert here disagrees with an article in the Ontario Medical Review which stated that youths in Prince Edward Island are increasingly using the motion-sickness drug Gravol as an intoxicant.

The magazine's April edition quoted Dr. Eva Powell, a Charlottetown psychiatrist, as saying the youths were taking up to 1,500 milligrams of Gravol for an evening's high. That amount could be lethal, she said.

However, Dr. Leo Killhorn, director of the privately operated Alcohol and Drug Problems Institute here, says it is not a large problem.

Only a handful of youths are using the drug, he says.

Gravol, which contains the active ingredient dimenhydrinate, is milder than some other sedatives, Killhorn says.

To ingest 1,500 milligrams, a user would have to swallow 30 tablets. However, he says he had seen some people take three times that much Valium — a stronger sedative — without ill effect.

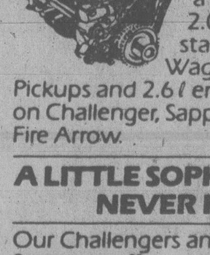
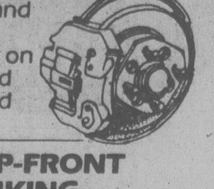
5/80 CHRYSLER PROTECTION PLAN
Ask about the new 5/80 Protection Plan Option.

SAY GOOD-BYE TO THE SHAKES.



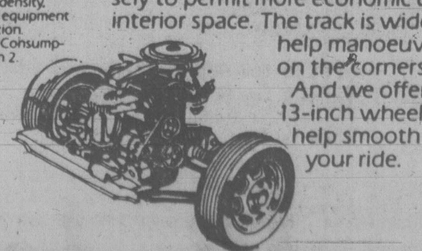
Silent shaft design (Mitsubishi engine exclusive) gives you two counter-rotating shafts to help dampen the vibrations expected of a four-cylinder engine. The silent shaft is a feature on the 2.0 ℓ engine, standard on Colt Wagon and D-50 Pickups and 2.6 ℓ engine, standard on Challenger, Sapporo and Fire Arrow.

A LITTLE SOPHISTICATION NEVER HURTS.



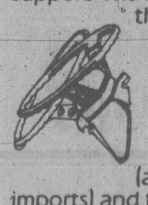
Our Challengers and Sapporos offer power disc brakes on all four wheels and a sporty five-speed transmission.

SOME UP-FRONT THINKING ON ROOM AND RIDE.



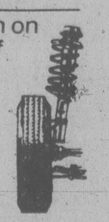
Colt Hatchbacks are front-wheel drive. The engine is placed transversely to permit more economic use of interior space. The track is wide to help manoeuvre on the corners. And we offer 13-inch wheels to help smooth your ride.

MAKING 'EM EASIER TO DRIVE.



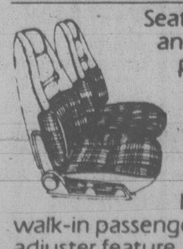
This much-desired automatic speed control option is also available when you select our Colt Wagon, Challenger or Sapporo with the optional 2.6-litre engine and automatic transmission. Standard driving equipment also includes such gems as adjustable steering column (a rarity among other imports) and trip odometer.

SUPERB HANDLING.



Independent rear suspension on Colt Hatchback is the kind of technology you find on Mercedes or BMW. In addition, MacPherson-type struts are up front on the Colt Hatchback, Challenger and Sapporo.

THE COMPLETE SEAT.



Seats on Challenger and Sapporo are orthopedic marvels. They offer lateral and adjustable lumbar support, recliner features, adjustable headrests built into seat and walk-in passenger seat "memory" adjuster feature.

LITTLE TRUCKS. BIG DIFFERENCES.

They're specially designed for Canadian-size folks and jobs. With a half-ton payload. If you'd like more, see the Sport model with an interior that looks like tomorrow's sports car. And the biggest engine in its class with its 2.6-litre four standard equipment.

"...MORE TRICKS THAN A SWISS ARMY KNIFE."

That's what Car and Driver magazine says of Colt Hatchback. And why not. It's full of engineering and people features like "Twin-Stick," front-wheel drive and transverse engine.

Jamieson quits for Nfld.

OTTAWA (UPC) — External Affairs Minister Donald Jamieson today prepares to leave Ottawa and the defeated federal Liberal government to return to his home province of Newfoundland and lead its opposition Liberals in a June 18 provincial election.

The announcement Sunday of the 58-year-old cabinet minister's change of career was made in St. John's by provincial Liberal leader William Rowe who said he would step aside to allow Jamieson to take over.

The Liberal party there has in effect been virtually leaderless since a controversy over leaked documents broke around Rowe last year.

The party called a leadership convention for July 7 to replace Rowe, who earlier admitted to a Royal Commission he had lied about his knowledge regarding a leak of confidential police documents. The documents, leaked to the media last year, dealt with a fire in April 1978 that gutted the apartment of Dr. Tom Farrell, then Progressive Conservative minister of industrial development.

Jamieson's acceptance effectively forestalled the leadership convention and may solidify support for the party.

The minister, who retained his Newfoundland Burin-St-Georges federal seat in last week's federal election, said his decision came after Newfoundland Liberals, attempting to reconstruct their fragmented party, made him an offer he could not refuse.

"I just didn't feel I could reject such a high level of confidence," Jamieson said. "I think if there's any such thing as a genuine draft, this is it.

"My job is to do the very best I can for Newfoundland, and one of the things about which I'm happiest in this new role and in this new challenge is that I have literally not a single hostage to fortune."

A vocal draft-Jamieson movement began in Newfoundland last Friday, immediately after Conservative Premier Brian Peckford called the election.

Peckford — who became premier in mid-March when he took over the governing Conservative Party from retired Premier Frank Moores — said Friday he needed a mandate to negotiate offshore resources and fishing rights.

Jamieson appears to have been considering such a move for some time. On the night of the federal election, he made a lengthy statement decrying the state of politics in Newfoundland, and bemoaned the deterioration of the provincial Liberal Party since its fall from power in the province in 1972.

It was felt at that time the former Liberal cabinet minister was hinting at his availability to take over the reins of Newfoundland's Liberal Party.

An unknown factor in the upcoming election, in addition to the effect Jamieson's leadership will have on the voters, stemmed from the New Democratic Party, who until last fall's federal by-elections had never won a seat in Newfoundland.

The federal NDP won 30 percent of the popular vote in last week's general election. While the standings at Friday's dissolution of Newfoundland's House of Assembly were 31 Tories and 20 Liberals, the NDP are expected to break in with at least six seats on June 18.

C-22 coming back?

WINNIPEG (CP) — Joe Davidson, past president of the Canadian Union of Postal Workers, says legislation restricting the rights of public employees likely will be reintroduced at the next session of parliament.

But Davidson said the public employees should oppose any such legislation with vigorous action, "including a general strike of public employees, and hopefully supported by the whole labor movement."

He said a Conservative government probably will reintroduce Bill C-22. He said the bill, which was dropped with the dissolution of parliament, would restrict collective bargaining by federal public servants.

The Canadian Labor Congress should have backed the postal workers' strike last year, Davidson told a weekend convention of the Canadian Association of Industrial, Mechanical and Allied Workers.

"Whatever injustices are imposed on the public sector will eventually be imposed on the whole labor movement."

Gov.-Gen scuba dives under Arctic ice

Schreyer helped into diving gear

ICE STATION LOREX (CP) — Gov.-Gen. Edward Schreyer, donning scuba gear and oxygen tanks, plunged into freezing water to explore the underside of polar ice only 50 kilometres from the geographic North Pole.

Schreyer made three dives last week for a total of 20 minutes under the ice while visiting this Canadian scientific outpost with John Parker, commissioner of the Northwest Territories.

The Governor-General is not an experienced diver; he was accompanied in his diving adventure by Joe McInnis, an underwater professional.

"I've had tanks on for a total of half an hour two years ago," Schreyer said just before slipping through a small hole in the ice into the sea water.

The water temperature under Ice Station Lorex is just above freezing and is no place for an idle swim, said one of two professional U.S. divers working at the research station.

Schreyer, wearing a heavily-insulated suit, at first surfaced almost as suddenly as he went down and said the water was too cold to keep a firm grip on his mouthpiece.

He said he had swallowed sea water.

He and McInnis then went under two more times.

The Governor-General appeared exhilarated and throughout a lunch that followed spoke about the underwater ice formations he had seen and touched.

Windows lighten fireplace wall

By PAULINE GRAVES

Every living room has, or should have, a focal point, a centre of attention around which furniture arrangement revolves.

Where a fireplace exists, it becomes the normal focal point, and by its architectural design, sets the character of the whole room. Because of its construction, clay flue, fire brick and concrete, most fireplaces are part of a massive wall and consequently they have a heavy look.

However, the fireplace we show here proves that all the masonry need not dictate the total wall design. As long as the flue, escape hatch for the smoke, is provided for, liberties can be taken, as was done in this house by architects Corbin/Yamafuji and Partners.

The windows positioned around the flue and above the mantel, do the trick. And angled as they are from 10-inches to 25-inches back from the mantel, they add dimension to the wall.

FREE TO ALL

Fresh Canadian-grown vegetables are making their appearance in your supermarket. Due to efficient transportation and improved storage facilities, many fresh vegetables are now available the year round. However, the nutritive value of vegetables is greatest when they are freshly-picked and used within a few days. For this reason, vegetables eaten in season are much more preferable than those that have been imported or stored.

Both green and yellow vegetables are important sources of vitamin "A". The green varieties also contribute vitamin "C" in substantial amounts. Vitamin "C" can be obtained from potatoes, turnips, and tomatoes as well.

Fresh Canadian Vegetables is a 34-page booklet that is published by the Department of Agriculture. The booklet furnishes the reader with excellent advice on how to buy, prepare, and serve a wide range of home-grown vegetables. As a finishing touch, there are 40 recipe ideas for using everything from asparagus to zucchini.

You can receive a free copy of this booklet by writing to: Information Services, Canada Dept. of Agriculture, Ottawa. Ontario. K1A 0C7.

Electrical problems

By MICHAEL LAMM

DEAR MIKE: What's wrong with the electrical dealies on my 1970 Ford? About one day a week, a bunch of them won't work: The windshield wipers, heater fan, radio, and turn signals stop operating. The gas-gauge needle won't move off zero. Then after the car sits a couple of hours, everything works fine again. Tell me what to look for. — FRUSTRATED

DEAR FRUS: Test your electrical system, including the fuse panel, for a poor or corroded connection. Also check for a broken wire or an intermittent short.

DEAR MIKE: My 1975 Olds has the rare manual 3-speed transmission. Since a recent clutch job, there's sometimes a growling clash when I shift into low at stop lights. It doesn't always happen. What's wrong? Is it the clutch? Transmission? Mechanic? Me? — GRINDER

DEAR GRINDER: It might be pedal adjustment, but it could also simply be that when the gear oil inside the transmission is cold, it doesn't let the cogs stop spinning before you go for low gear. Does it help to wait a few seconds between the time you push in the clutch and when you move the level? If so, it's still gear oil. If not, it's probably linkage adjustment.

DEAR MIKE: The rear brakes lock up on my 1976 Ford F-250 4x4 pickup. All I have to do is touch the brakes and the rear tires start to slide. I've checked the rear brakes for axle leaks, but there are none. The brakes have discs up front, with a vacuum booster. — SLIDING

DEAR SLIDING: Your brake equalizer valve might be out of whack, or the brake lines entering your master cyclinder could be reversed.

DEAR MIKE: The windshield of my 1974 Gremlin was hit by a small stone about a week ago. At first there was just a pockmark. Then a crack began to spread across the glass, an inch at a time. It's about seven inches long now, heading straight across the windshield. Is there any way to stop it from growing? — SLIGHTLY CRACKED

DEAR SLIGHTLY: No. It'll either stop by itself or it'll keep going all the way. Most states now require broken windshields to be replaced if they're cracked or badly pockmarked.

TORONTO (CP) — Dr. Benjamin Spock, whose book Baby and Child Care has sold more than 28 million copies since its first publication in 1946, says he is partly to blame for a generation of pesky children and that the book helped make a "generation of children, the majority of whom are arguers."

Spock, 76, at a lecture sponsored by Planned Parenthood of Toronto, said that his book gave parents some valuable guidance but also helped create such a generation of children.

He blames parents' failure to discipline their children for an increase in teen-age pregnancies.

Spock said teen-age pregnancy and abortion have been rising everywhere because of permissiveness in society and open and often brutalized sex on television and in the movies.

He said more sex education is needed at schools and in the home to combat the problem of unwanted teen-age pregnancies.

"Children will try to evade the idea that as a girl they might become pregnant or as boy they might cause a pregnancy," he said. "They magically excuse themselves from some of those realities that aren't so easy to deal with."

Spock said that as sex permeates human society, all high school subjects should touch on it.

"Sex is not meant to be taught by the gym teachers alone as if sex were a muscle, or by a school physician as though it were a disease.

"If Romeo and Juliet reminds a girl in class about her own predicament with dating, I think that is a good class and a good teacher who allows a child to bring that work down to his own life."

Spock said increased sex education should go hand in hand with more discussion about sex within the family. But he said it is difficult.

"I was a father of sons and I had to screw up my courage to a fantastic degree to bring up the subject," he said.

"Not only was it painful to me to get into but it was even more painful for my sons. Teen-agers don't like to associate parents with sex."

But it's important to keep communication open on sexual matters between parents and children, he said.

"You have to talk to them on an adult-to-adult basis because you've been talking down to them for years."

dear abby

DEAR READERS: No problems today. Instead, I am devoting my entire column to tips that could save your life.

Let's pretend your a contestant on a quiz show, and you are asked the following question:

If you said, "(c) lightning," you would be right.

Most deaths caused by lightning could have been avoided if only common sense had been used. But common sense is not as common as most people think it is.

Lightning occurs during thunderstorms, so the logical time to start protecting yourself is when you see the storm clouds gathering.

As a general rule, avoid high places, metal and water!

If you are outdoors, seek shelter in a house or other large building. (Steer clear of sheds or small buildings in isolated areas.)

If you are on the golf course, and can't reach a building, first drop your golf club, then head for your car — assuming the car is not a convertible, it will act as a "cage" to protect you. (The metal picks up the lightning, conducts it around you and into the ground.) Stay in the car. Keep windows and doors (and sun roof) shut.

Never stand under a tall tree. If lightning strikes the tree, electricity can run down the trunk, through the roots, into the ground and into your body.

If you are riding a motorcycle, bicycle or tractor — get off. The rubber tires will NOT protect you.

If you are caught in a flat, open field, bend down and put your hands on your knees. Do not LIE down on the ground. Maintain MINIMUM contact with the ground.

Don't rely on rubber-soled shoes to protect you. Lightning can carry a jolt of up to 100 million volts.

It's also not true that lightning never strikes twice in the same place. The conditions that attract the lightning bolt in the first place can attract it again.

Have a safe summer.

Love, ABBY

Leslie Holbrook

"I feel sorry for Senator David Croll and U.S. Senator Frank Church (your Fourth Quarter column) who appear to have no other interests in life than work and seem to view retirement as some dreadful imposition or stigma that is forced upon them," writes D. H. Tomkinson of Mississauga.

"God gave us this wonderful world to explore and enjoy (not exploit and destroy) and a person could spend many years adventuring in national parks and other beautiful, exciting spots. I realize that some people do not have the money to do things like that but, as I believe you wrote in an earlier travel column, there are many pleasant and profitable retirement pursuits closer to home.

"North Americans are strange people, working themselves to death in pursuit of the almighty dollar (not so almighty these days) and the material possessions they can buy. The European, on the other hand, has so many interests and hobbies that he looks forward to retirement at 55 or 60 so that he can enjoy his leisuretime pursuits to the full while he is still in good health.

"Maybe the senators should read some of Welsh poet William Henry Davies' works such as his poem Leisure which begins:

"You asked for seniors' comments re: second and third careers," writes a retired public health nurse. "I am not alone in finding a third career (volunteer work in the field of health) and think that many more people could, too, if they used enough imagination about their post-retirement years.

"I have never been happier than now, doing something that I thoroughly enjoy, with no one over me to supervise or crack down on my ideas, and with flexibility of time so that the clock is no longer my enemy.

"Another happy medical person I know has switched to research work with just his expenses paid, now that funding for medical research has been reduced drastically in Canada. The medical group are very happy to have his expertise continuing on.

"I recognize that such volunteer types of second or third careers require enough pension to live on in a reasonable measure of comfort. But I suggest that others requiring a little extra, over and above their pension, search out interesting chores where partial payment for services or at least expenses are forthcoming."

"I had hoped to retire at 60 but have to wait 'til 65 for full pension; I suppose it will rise to 70 if your Senator Croll has his way.

"The ones who want to keep on working, like the senator, must have an easy job, lots of time off and vacations when they feel like it. It must be nice," writes a St. Catharines lady.

"At 60, I asked for half days but was refused. I can't even take time off without pay. (I do get usual holidays.) To talk about raising the retirement age to 70 is inhumane.

HOW TO WRITE

CLASSIFIED ACTION

AD

1—IT'S BEST to start your ad with the name of the article or service you have to offer. If you have an apartment, room, etc., for rent, or property for sale; start your ad with the location.

2—BE CLEAR. Readers respond more quickly and favorably by giving complete, definite information. Always include the price in your advertisement.

3—MAKE IT EASY for the reader-prospect to reach you. Always give your telephone number or your name and address. If you do not have regular hours, state a preferred time for the prospect to get in touch with you.

4—PLAY SAFE. You get the greatest reader attention by using consecutive insertions. A six-day order is best and costs less, and you can, of course, stop your ad as soon as you get the results you want. You pay only for the days your ad appeared. Lower yearly rates are available to those who wish to keep their services or products before the public.

5—PLACE YOURSELF in the reader's position and ask yourself what you want to know about your offer. The answer you give will make a good Want Ad.

6—GIVE YOUR PROSPECT every inducement you can with good copy. Classified action ad readers have the money and are already interested in buying the merchandise or service you have to offer; the details and information you give are the most important.

7—TO PLACE YOUR AD, call 386-2121, your direct line number to fast Want Ad action. A courteous, efficient advisor will be glad to help you word and place your order. And remember, Classified Action Ads afford you the most complete coverage. Telephones are open 8:00 a.m. to 6:00 p.m. Monday through Friday, 8:00 to 5:30 p.m. Saturday. Don't allow the reader to speculate.

New dissension develops as white rule runs out

SALISBURY (Reuter) — The beginning of the end of white rule in Rhodesia starts today, with the country's new black-majority government plagued by dissension and war even before it assumes office.

The Government of National Unity due to take power Friday has been reduced by bitterness and argument to two participants from four in the 34 days since Rhodesia's first one-man, one-vote elections.

The coalition cabinet will now comprise only members of the United African National Council (UANC) of Prime Minister-elect Bishop Abel Muzorewa and the white Rhodesian Front of out-going Prime Minister Ian Smith.

The United National Federal party (UNFP) of Chief Kayisa Ndiweni dropped out Sunday after a disagreement with the UANC. Meanwhile, the Zimbabwe African National Union (ZANU) of Rev. Ndabanigngi Sithole has refused to participate in the government because of what it alleges were irregularities in the UANC election victory.

Besides the disunity in parliament, the six-year guerrilla war appears to be raging unabated, despite the approach of black rule. Military communiques have announced more than 140 dead in the last three days.

The likely winner is Josiah Gumede, a 60-year-old former headmaster, civil servant and diplomat nominated by the UANC. He is opposed by a retired teacher, Timothy Ndhlovu, 61, of the UNFP.

The UNFP said in a statement Sunday that it would not take up its two places in the cabinet and that its nine MPs would operate as an opposition bloc — spurning the purpose of a national unity government — because the UANC had reneged on a promise of consultations.

Sithole's group has declared it will not take up its 12 seats or its two places in the cabinet until the high court has considered a petition that the election was rigged in favor of the UANC. The party has so far not presented its evidence to the court.

The president and the prime minister-designate will be sworn in Tuesday and the cabinet will be named on Wednesday.

The end of outright power by 250,000 whites over almost seven million blacks will come at midnight Thursday night and the new state of Zimbabwe Rhodesia comes into being Friday.

Boat people jam Hong Kong

HONG KONG (Reuter) — More than 1,000 Vietnamese refugees sailed into Hong Kong on Sunday as officials questioned 1,400 others aboard a freighter that ran aground at a beach Saturday.

Hong Kong's refugee population has swelled to 37,000, with a record 7,000 — the highest number since the Vietnam War ended four years ago — arriving during the last week.

As officials investigated the grounded 800-ton Panamanian-registered freighter Sen On, 1,209 more Vietnamese arrived aboard 15 fishing boats.

The refugees on the Sen On forced the freighter ashore after its captain and a seven-man crew had fled the night before on a junk that picked them up at the mouth of the Pearl river.

The freighter's logbook was not found and its passengers claimed they paid about $4,000 each to leave Vietnam.

Police suspected a syndicate was involved in the voyage of the Sen On, which is reported to be Hong Kong-owned and manned by Chinese seamen.

The flow of refugees taking advantage of favorable monsoon winds has become an immigration headache for Hong Kong.

GARDENING

Relieving whiteness of flowering shrubs

May is known by many home gardeners as a month of white flowered shrubs. And it may be, if none of the broadleaved evergreen ones are grown. The huge Rhododendron group is the outstanding example of color among early shrubs and they should be known and seen by every local garden owner.

May has various shrubs with other colors. If we include climbers there are dozens of showy Clematis now blooming. These are particularly suited to small properties for they occupy little ground space, yet cover with prolific bloom large areas of perpendicular space.

When the pure white of the Snowball-bush, a species of Viburnum, begins to fade we find other shrubs opening whose flowers are shades of pink. First noticed may be the lovely soft shade of Weigela The Fairy a wide spreading deciduous shrub to blend with the last of white May shrubs. Other varieties having shades of deep pink to red open later in summer.

A useful tree for a small garden has pink flowers. This is Tamarix parviflora, with fine needle-like leaves in summer.

The tiny pink flowers are crowded on 10-inch stems, resulting in a pink mist effect. Flowering begins when the tree is only three feet or so tall and increases each year. The fine needle-like leaves in summer on the arching branches never create dense shade, yet the tree-form lends height and grace to the garden picture.

Another pink flowered shrub in bloom is Kolkwitzia amabilis, with the common local name of Beauty-bush. This has small tubular flowers, each with a wide mouth showing a tinge of yellow in the throat.

A comparatively small shrub, it becomes densely twiggy up to six feet in all directions, smothered with bloom if open to the south.

Yet another colorful display will be given in early June by two or three varieties of Escallonia.

Several of this genus have evergreen foliage; one or two are leaf-losing, but all are worth growing. A favorite is the evergreen Escallonia Donard Seedling having apple-blossom pink and white small flowers in short clusters on every twig end all over the stiffly branched shrub.

The flowers are slightly scented in this variety, attracting honey bees in warm June days. Later, this year's new twig growth will also bloom thus stretching the season of color.

A scarlet variety C. F. Ball is lovely when planted to intertwine a little with Donard but is untidy and straggling on its own. Perhaps different pruning would correct this, but I have never yet developed a compact habit on this plant.

A broadleaved evergreen of the Heath Family is Kalmia latifolia with perhaps one of the most unique flower forms in North American gardens. They are pink. Buds are already formed but not open yet. Individual flowers are relatively small, in clusters, having a sharply creased appearance worthy of close examination under a hand glass when opening. The crinkled form remains to some extent though each flower opens to almost an inch wide. Calico-bush and Mountain-laurel are two common names.

Perhaps to relieve all this pinkness which really never becomes tiresome because of green foliage backgrounds, a soft blue flowering shrub will keep them company for several weeks.

This is another evergreen, Ceanothus thyrsiflorus repens, liking a background for both warmth and support in colder gardens though it might be tried in the open in warmer areas near salt water. Then its sprawling habit would likely form a great mound of blue over the shiny green of the foliage.

WASHINGTON (AP) — Iranians poured hundreds of gallons of fine liquor down a fountain drain Sunday at their embassy, a place where the expensive spirits once flowed at lavish Washington parties.

The embassy had built up a huge store of high-quality liquor while Ardeshir Zahedi served as ambassador for the shah of Iran. But the shah is gone from Iran, his place taken by Islamic leader Ayatollah Ruhollah Khomeini.

For religious reasons the liquor had to go and it did — more than 4,000 bottles, the Iranians said.

They gave no estimate for the value of the bottles' contents but the piled-up crates of liquor clearly were worth many thousands of dollars.

Isotope link to lab dish

JACKSON, Miss. (AP) — A contaminated labatory dish was responsible for high radiation readings from lizards found near a site where U.S. atomic weapons tests were carried out in the 1960s, a University of Mississippi official said Sunday. The radiation scare had resulted in an evacuation of the area late last week.

However, officials said tests will continue at the 1,400-acre test site, about 40 kilometres south of Hattiesburg, because there is evidence of low-level radiation contamination.

Gov. Cliff Finch asked a dozen families living within 2.5 kilometres of the Tatum Salt Dome to evacuate their homes Friday following reports of the scientific findings.

Dr. Edmond Keiser, a University of Mississippi biologist, said high levels of sodium-22, a radioactive isotope, turned up in toads, frogs and the deformed lizard found in the area.

The lizard had extra toes, and the frog's liver showed 1,000 times the normal amount of radiation, he said.

The evacuation order was lifted later Friday, and Lamar County Sheriff Marvin Breazeale said Sunday that all the families had returned to their homes.

Also on Sunday, Ed Meek, a University of Mississippi official, said scientists determined after two days of testing that the high sodium-22 readings came from a contaminated dish at a university laboratory.

"Several different samples were tested from eight different animals and the results were confirmed by three separate labs," Meek said. "The dish itself had sodium-22."

Meek said he did not know how the isotope contaminated the dish.

"Sodium-22 is a very rare commodity," he said. "This dish was transferred from an old laboratory to a new laboratory and it was checked out and certified and supposedly not used before.

"This is not to imply any foul play whatsoever. It's just the basic data was wrong," he said.

As for the deformed lizard, "we have no indication as to how that (deformity) happened," he added.

Scientists from the U.S. energy department and the governor's nuclear advisory committee gathered at the site Sunday to collect more samples and test them for radiation. Finch said there was no immediate danger at the salt dome, which was the site of nuclear weapons tests conducted by the U.S. government in 1964 and 1966.

NAIROBI (AP) — A U.S. mercenary hired to find Idi Amin says the deposed dictator is preparing a major counter-attack against the new Ugandan government, but a London newspaper says Amin and his family are refugees in Iraq.

No confirmation of either report was available.

Daniel Waltner told a news conference Sunday that "hundreds and possibly thousands of mercenaries coming from all over the Arab countries" are assembling near Arua, Amin's hometown in northwest Uganda, for the counter-attack.

"They now have more personnel, and some very heavy equipment is landing every day around Arua and other places in northwest Uganda," he said.

Waltner said the equipment includes rocket launchers made in Eastern Europe.

He said the counter-attack is to be led by Lt.-Col. Juma Ali, believed to have been the killer of Dora Bloch, the Jewish grandmother left behind when Israeli commandos freed hostages from a hijacked airliner at Entebbe Airport three years ago.

Waltner said last week that between 3,000 and 6,000 troops have gathered at Amin's headquarters, and that he and his 15-man commando team had sighted Amin in the area.

Several columns of Tanzanian and Ugandan government forces have been advancing across northern Uganda for the last six weeks, extending the Kampala government's control and encountering only minor resistance from pro-Amin soldiers.

Waltner, a naturalized U.S. citizen of French origin, said he and his men were hired by Samuel Flatto-Sharon, a member of the Israeli parliament, to keep tabs on Amin and arrange for the repatriation of Mrs. Bloch's body.

There has been no confirmation that Waltner is working for Flatto-Sharon, a millionaire fugitive from French fraud charges who claims to have set up a three-way prisoner swap between the U.S., East Germany and Mozambique in 1978. He also says he is involved in negotiations to free Soviet dissident Anatoly Shcharansky and get chess ace Viktor Korchnoi's wife and son out of the Soviet Union.

'Holy war' PLO cry

LONDON (AP) — An envoy from the Palestine Liberation Organization (PLO) asked Moslems from 27 countries Sunday to take up arms for a "holy war" to take Jerusalem from the Israelis and free all Moslems from non-Moslem rule.

PLO representative Hani al-Hassan spoke to a cheering crowd of more than 100 Moslems attending the closing session of a four-day conference that set up the International Secretariat for the Liberation of Moslem Lands.

The conference named a Saudi Arabian delegate, Salem Azzam, as secretary-general and established its headquarters in London.

Hassan told the conference: "(PLO leader) Yasser Arafat instructed me to convey to you that he is ready to support you with his battalions. We are now given the chance to take up arms and stop the talking."

The conference, which closed all its meetings to reporters except for the final dinner, issued communiques detailing its 24 resolutions.

One called on Christians "the world over to join hands with Moslems in restoring Jerusalem to Moslems and thus protect the Holy Places and Jerusalem from Zionist mutilation." The Arab sector of Jerusalem was occupied by Israel in the 1967 Middle East War.

Other resolutions voiced support for Moslems separatists or Moslem religious movements in the Philippines, Afghanistan, Africa, Cyprus, Turkey, Lebanon and India.

Mauritania's premier killed

NOUAKCHOTT (AP) — Development Minister Col. Ahmed Salem Ould Sidi was named acting premier of Mauritania today, replacing Ahmed Ould Bouceif who died Sunday in a plane crash off the Senegalese coast.

Searchers found the wreckage of the twin-engine de Havilland aircraft early today. The plane had plunged into the Atlantic after a sandstorm prevented it from landing in Dakar.

The premier's death was officially announced in the Mauritanian capital of Nouakchott late Sunday and the government decreed 40 days of official mourning.

The statement said the other victims were Mauritanian's recently-appointed ambassador to Paris, a member of the ruling military Committee of National Salvation, an aide, two journalists and five crewmembers.

WASHINGTON (WP) — The U.S. Environmental Protection Agency, in one of the most controversial and expensive regulations ever adopted, told the utility industry last week that allowable air pollution from new coal-fired power plants is to be cut in half.

However, the new rules won't reduce over-all sulphur emissions in the near future, because existing plants are not affected and coal use is expected to almost triple by 1995. New plants will be cleaner, but there will be more of them.

The standard, which is a relaxation of a stricter rule proposed in September, came after one of the most intense regulatory battles of the Carter administration. EPA was under extreme pressure by the coal and utility industries, the White House, the Energy Department and a coalition of senators from coal-producing states led by Majority Leader Robert Byrd, D-W.Va.

However, EPA administrator Douglas Costle Friday dismissed the pressure as "a tempest in a teapot." He said, "It's gotten to be a symbolic issue.... On balance we've come out with a very tight standard."

The new rules retain the current emissions ceiling of 1.2 pounds of sulphur per million BTUs, but requires plants to remove between 70 and 90 percent of the sulphur from their emissions. EPA had proposed earlier an across-the-board scrubbing of 90 per cent and was considering an emissions ceiling as low as 0.55 pounds. Because of the scrubbing requirement in the new rules, sulfur emission from many new plants will be well below the 1.2 pound ceiling.

The new standards will cost utilities $35 billion by 1995, or $3.3 billion a year in annualized costs including financing expenses — an amount equal to 2 percent of the cost of building the plants.

Sadat, Begin declare borders open

EL ARISH, Egypt (AP) — President Anwar Sadat and Prime Minister Menachem Begin declared the Egyptian-Israeli border open at weekend summit meetings in the Sinai and Negev deserts and announced they would meet again in Egypt in July.

Begin also announced he will release an unspecified number of Palestinian prisoners in a good-will gesture to Egypt.

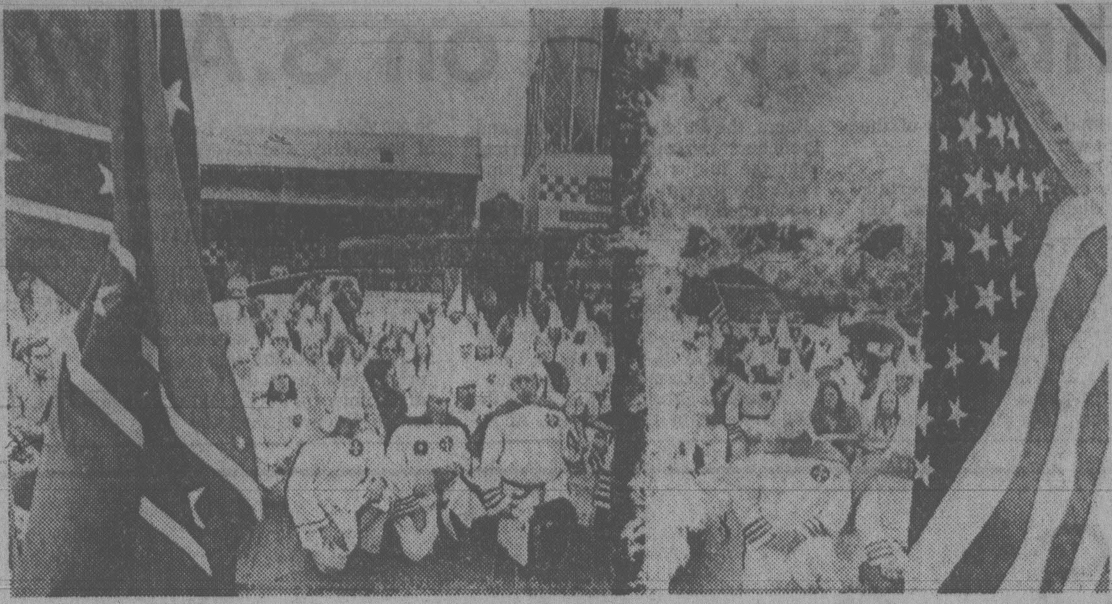
Begin made good on his plege today, releasing 16 Arab prisoners held on what Israeli state radio described as "minor security offences." The released prisoners were not identified.

In another development, a young woman was slightly injured today when a bomb exploded on a public beach in the Israeli port city of Haifa, Israel radio reported.

U.S. State Secretary Cyrus Vance joined the Egyptian and Israeli leaders for a day of ceremonies and talks Sunday in El Arish, the Sinai capital returned to Egypt on Friday, then in Beersheba, the capital of Israel's Negev, and then on a flight over parts of Israel and Sinai to symbolize the opening of air traffic between the two countries.

"The president and I proclaim here from El Arish that the borders of Egypt and Israel are open," Begin announced after an initial 15-minute talk with Sadat. "Citizens of Egypt will be able to visit Israel, and citizens of Israel will be able to visit Egypt."

Despite the declaration, procedures for travel across the border were still to be worked out. Such travel was expected to be limited for some time to exchanges sponsored by the two governments.



Klansmen kneel in front of a burning cross at the scene of Saturday's shootout.

Robed KKKs stage rally

DECATUR, Ala. (AP) — Vowing they will defend themselves with arms, members of the Ku Klux Klan staged a City Hall rally Sunday in this Tennessee River town already shaken by the wounding of four persons in a shootout between Klansmen and black demonstrators.

About 50 robed Klansmen — some armed with pick handles and wooden clubs — marched to the site of the shootout, about one kilometrs north of City Hall, and burned a cross. At least one Klansman was armed with an automatic shotgun.

The Klansmen then marched back to City Hall chanting: "What do we want — white power! What will we get — white power!"

The only blacks near the rally were several reporters.

There were no incidents as about 30 city police equipped with riot gear stood nearby. State troopers also were waiting in their cars.

One Klansman, Kenneth Vernon Duncan, 34, of Selma, was arrested on a weapons charge. A city ordinance prohibiting possession of firearms within 330 metres of a public demonstration was passed earlier this year after armed Klansmen paraded through the city.

Klansmen vowed they would not allow another demonstration by the Southern Christian Leadership Conference (SCLC).

The SCLC, the Atlanta-based civil rights organization founded by the late Dr. Martin Luther King, has led a number of marches here and in neighboring Cullman in support of Tommy Lee Hines, a 27-year-old retarded black man convicted in the rape of a white woman.

Dancing Zulus threaten war on S.A. whites

ULUNDI, South Africa (AP) — Looking out on the battlefield where a British army destroyed the Zulu kingdom 100 years ago, Paramount Chief Gatsha Buthelezi warned that his people will rise again if South Africa's white rulers refuse to grant them freedom.

Buthelezi spoke at the end of a three-day weekend ceremony commemorating the 1879 Anglo-Zulu war. But first he led several hundred of his leopard-skin clad warriors in a giya or war dance.

Smashing their feet to the earth with bone-crushing blows as bare-breasted women urged them on with ululating cries, the Zulus moved menacingly forward carrying cowhide shields and the short stabbing spears known as assegais.

It was an awesome spectacle for whites used to seeing smiling, courteous Zulus cleaning and guarding white homes and businesses in South Africa.

Buthelezi told an audience of 10,000: "We . . . are spoiling for a new and more terrible replay of the events of Isandlwana, Rorkes Drift . . . and Ulundi," the battles of the Anglo-Zulu war.

"We are a proud people . . . when our manhood is subverted, when our dignity is sullied, we will not stand by. We have shown our bravery in the past. We can show it again."

King Shaka, the first Zulu monarch, built a tightly disciplined army. One hundred years ago, the Zulu empire was the sparta of southern Africa, its warriors the most feared men in the region.

Inevitably, they clashed with the Boers, the Dutch-origin farmers and ranchers who settled in South Africa, but the major confrontation came with the arrival of the British, who succeeded the Boers as rulers of the Zulu territory in Natal in eastern South Africa.

Rejecting a British ultimatum that Zulus make themselves subservient to a British representative, King Cesthawayo prepared for war in his royal krall, or village, at Ulundi, 225 kilometres north of Durban.

The first encounter was a smashing victory for his warriors. About 20,000 Zulus wiped out a British force of 800 whites and several hundred natives armed with the newest repeating rifles in the battle of Isandlwana. It was said to be the worst defeat ever inflicted on an imperial army by a native force.

Within a few hours the tide changed. A force of 104 British soldiers, many wounded or ill, took refuge in the Swedish mission at nearby Rorkes Drift and held it against a furious onslaught by several thousand Zulus. On July 4, 1879, a large British force crushed the Zulus at Ulundi, forcing King Cesthawayo into exile.

The South African government's theme for the weekend commemoration was reconciliation. In a ceremony at Rorkes Drift, Piet Koornhof, the minister in charge of black affairs, urged co-operation between the races.

"Our destiny can only be reached if . . . we go forward in a spirit of mutual respect and trust, and if we together can ensure peace and stability," he said.

Carter books called

WASHINGTON (AP) — The government's special counsel looking into loans to U.S. President Jimmy Carter's family peanut warehouse has issued a broad subpoena for business records, published reports say.

The reports in Sunday editions of the Washington Star and today's editions of the Washington Post say the subpoena issued by Paul Curran was delivered to White House counsel Robert Lipshutz. No details were provided.

There was no immediate comment from the White House. the New York Times reported today that U.S. District Judge Richard Freeman said he has imposed unusual secrercy orders upon the investigation. The Times reported that Freeman said he instructed a lawyer representing Lipshutz that he did not want the White House to comment on the matter.

Carter, whose 63-per-cent ownership of the business is in a blind trust while he is president, has said he knows of no illegality concerning loans to the warehouse and that he "will co-operate fully" with Curran.

Records from the business in Plains, Ga., already have been subpoenaed by an Atlanta grand jury investigating banking practices of Carter's former budget director, Bert Lance.

Lance, who was indicted last week on charges of violating various banking laws, headed the National Bank of Georgia in 1975 and 1976 when the bank made about $6.5 million in loans to Carter's peanut business.

Greece enters EEC

ATHENS (Reuter) — Greece, the cradle of Western civilization, today signs a treaty of accession to the European Economic Community (EEC), which will make it the organization's 10th member Jan. 1, 1981.

It is the climax of years of effort by Premier Constantine Karamanlis to take Greece into the EEC, thereby hoping to ensure not only increased prosperity, but also that Greece never again comes under a dictatorship.

French President Valery Giscard D'Estaing will sign the treaty on behalf of the community at the marble Zappeion Exhibition Hall in the shadow of the 2,500-year-old Acropolis.

Athens police were on stand-by alert in case of anti-EEC demonstrations. The two main opposition parties, the Pan-Hellenic Socialist Movement of Andreas Papandreou and the Moscow-oriented Greek Communist party, have decided to boycott the ceremony.

Dump gets Cullen secret papers

OTTAWA (CP) — A truckload of government documents from defeated Employment and Immigration Minister Bud Cullen's office has been discovered at a local dump.

In a front-page story today, The Citizen says Cullen and his staff ferreted through the piles early Saturday morning, then he told department security officials that he wanted the remainder burned or buried.

However, Citizen reporters, tipped that Cullen was at the Howard Rump Sand and Gravel pit at nearby Carp where the material was dumped, made off with several bags of documents.

Among the material was:

—A confidential 1976 exchange of letters between Cullen and former solicitor-general Warren Allmand concerning RCMP co-operation with the revenue department to fight organized crime. The exchange was the basis of testimony at royal commission hearings into RCMP wrongdoings.

—Applications by potential immigrants for landed status, and letters explaining that some could not qualify because of criminal records.

After going through the documents, reporters from the newspaper handed them over to police.

Reporters found several bags of shredded documents, piles of unused stationery, airline tickets and immigration department spending information.

One document was called The Garbage Book, which describes how to save energy and money by throwing less away.

Backlash from Nigerian curbs on tankers

EARLY CASUALTY of the Swiftsure sailing classic, the 28-foot sloop Moi-Tivator, owned by David Moe of the Port Angeles Yacht Club, heads for Victoria after being dismasted before her race started. Entered in the smaller Juan de Fuca race, she was trying to round a navy committee boat on port tack. When she rounded the bow she couldn't see the 36-foot Swiftsure racer Mukluks, owned by H. Buckley of the Bellingham Yacht Club, bearing down on her on a starboard tack. There was no time for either boat to avoid a collision. The Mukluks received some damage but was able to carry on.

U.S. oil in new danger

Times News Services

Nigeria, the United States' second largest source of foreign oil, has broadened boycott restrictions in a move that could trigger another U.S. oil supply crisis, Petroleum Intelligence Weekly reported today.

Nigeria, which exports about 1.1 million barrels of oil daily to the United States, has tightened boycott measures against South Africa, Rhodesia and Israel by imposing stringent rules on tankers that call at its ports.

The new rules prohibit tankers from entering Nigerian ports that have had any "contact" with the three blacklisted countries in the prior six-week to three-month period.

Nigeria is applying the new restrictions to Shell Oil Co. and British Petroleum Co. Ltd., which constitute Nigeria's main oil-producing venture.

The tougher boycott measures apparently affect some of Nigeria's direct crude oil customers but do not extend to U.S., French or Italian oil producers in the African nation, the publication said.

"Under U.S. anti-boycott laws, U.S. companies could not comply with the new Nigerian rules without violating U.S. law," sources told Petroleum Intelligence Weekly.

U.S. laws prohibit American firms from honoring secondary boycott rules designed to prevent business relationships with blacklisted countries or providing information to the boycotting nations on corporate dealings with blacklisted countries.

Meantime, Saudi Arabia has agreed to increase its oil production temporarily from 8.5 million to nine million barrels a day, Newsweek magazine said today.

The decision was made at the request of the United States, it said, "on the assumption that the political pressure on (President) Carter will ease if gasoline is more readily available."

One of Carter's top aides says the United States needs co-operation from oil-exporting countries in its fight to control inflation.

Stuart Eizenstat, assistant to the president for domestic affairs and policy, said Sunday the oil prices of the Organization of Petroleum Exporting Countries (OPEC) are a key factor in controlling inflation.

Asked whether he felt OPEC would co-operate, Eizenstat replied: "At this point, frankly, they have not shown that they are terribly interested in moderation."

OPEC prices have climbed 25 per cent since December, he said. OPEC ministers meet in Geneva, Switzerland, next month to discuss, among other things, a price increase.

Washington state motorists who worried about gasoline supplies over the Memorial Day weekend can expect to find more fuel available the rest of the week as service stations reopen, a dealer spokesman said.

"A lot of dealers have gas to sell, but they decided to

Pearce Arrow duels to win

By PAT DUFOUR
Times Staff

Winner of this year's blustery Swiftsure sailing classic and the coveted Swiftsure Trophy is the 35-foot sloop The Pearce Arrow, skippered by Ken Pearce of the Royal Vancouver Yacht Club.

Racing in the International Offshore Rule section, she went over the finish line at 12.33 p.m. Sunday.

She won by a scant 3½ minutes. Greg Oliver's 36-foot Distant Drummer of the Royal Victoria Yacht Club, finished before her but the time allowance she had to give the Vancouver boat lost her the race by the short time period.

Oliver won his division in both 1974 and 1976. This was his sixth Swiftsure.

Pearce and Oliver have been neck and neck in such races as the Southern Strait of Georgia.

First boat to finish in the gruelling 49th annual Swiftsure was Lol Killam's 73-foot ketch Graybeard of the Royal Vancouver Yacht Club. She crossed the line at 10.11 a.m. Sunday, capturing the City of Victoria Trophy.

Champagne toast aboard Greybeard

It was the third time for Graybeard as the first boat home. This year she had to settle for one trophy while in 1973 and 1974 she swept the field, being the over-all winner, first boat home, first to round the Swiftsure mark and first in her division.

Throughout the 136.2 mile race Graybeard had fought a duel with the 12-metre Weatherly, owned by Lynn Sommers and Alan Buchan of the Tacoma Yacht Club.

Weatherly, which won the America's Cup in 1962, beat Graybeard around the Swiftsure mark by one minute at 9.08 p.m. Saturday but was half a mile behind Graybeard when the Vancouver boat reached Race Passage under spinnaker on the homeward leg.

Killam chose to sail inside the Race while Weatherly went outside looking for extra wind that never came.

Graybeard's crew made almost 40 sail changes in less than two hours in order to keep her moving.

A record fleet of 409 boats took part in Swiftsure and the smaller 75.6-mile Juan de Fuca race but the punishing gale-force winds that raached 57 knots at times took their toll.

A total of 108 boats were forced to withdraw, some dismasted in collisions, others with rudder and other gear failure.

For the first time in Swiftsure history one boat sank but there was no loss of life.

Sailing up the Strait of Juan de Fuca on Saturday, east of Pillar Point on the Washington side, W.F. Hester's 42-foot sloop Zuben'Ubi II of Seattle's Corinthian Yacht Club collided with G. Ross's 52-foot ketch Dorade of the Seattle Yacht Club.

The force of the collision was so great that a three-by-one foot hole was punched into the hull of Zuben'Ubi

'Gold fever' still high

By MARK HUME
Times Staff

Diamond drills seeking proof of a gold mother-lode in the Queen Charlotte Islands are continuing to turn up significant traces around Juskatla Inlet, a mining company president said today.

Ken Sanders, whose Consolidated Cinola Mines Ltd. may be sitting on a fortune in high grade ore at the remote inlet, said that regular test drills are steadily proving out the find.

Sanders says diamond drills to probe the ore body are being sunk regularly and a full-time base camp has now been established at the site.

"We're continuing to diamond drill and the results are gratifying," he said.

Consolidated crews are piecing together a picture of a vast deposit of gold-bearing quartz that may or may not be rich enough to warrant a major mining operation.

Sanders said that a decision will likely be made in the very near future on whether or not to go ahead with a proposed massive open-pit mine.

"We're looking at that now. It's tempting to consider doing it right now . . . some people might consider that jumping the gun, but you could diamond drill forever."

Sanders, who got his knuckles rapped earlier this year for what the Vancouver Stock Exchange (VSE) called "higly promotional statements", is as enthusiastic as ever about the Charlotte gold.

Gold price climbs $5 to $275

LONDON (AP) — Gold rose almost $5 an ounce and hit a record $275.125 at mid-morning trading in Zurich today. The U.S. dollar also strengthened.

The opening quote for gold in Zurich was $272.125 an ounce, up from the previous high of $270.625 Friday. It then continued climbing.

Gold has risen more than $50 an ounce in the last month and dealers attribute it to the oil shortage, inflation, currency uncertainties and a shortage of gold on the market because of a reduction in sales by the International Monetary Fund and the U.S. Federal Reserve Board.

22 Belfast buses blasted by bombs

BELFAST (AP) — Twenty-two municipal buses were blown up in a bomb attack Sunday night, police reported today.

They said four armed and masked men held up an employee at the Ardoyne bus depot in northern Belfast and cleared the area before placing bombs on the buses.

Nine bombs exploded detroying 10 buses and damaging another 11, police said. They estimated that total damage was about £250,000 ($600,000).

Police said no one was injured.

On Saturday, the Provisonal wing of the Irish Republican Army (IRA) claimed responsibility for two bomb blasts at a Belfast rail terminal and another explosion on a passenger train running between Belfast and Londonderry.

Police said more than 100 passengers on the train escaped injury when they fled.

The Roman Catholic Provisionals have conducted regular attacks on Northern Ireland's rail network in their fight to end British rule and to have the predominantly Protestant region unite with the Irish republic to the south.

DC-10s grounded for bolt checks

WASHINGTON (AP) — All U.S.-operated DC-10 jetliners not yet inspected for weak engine bolts such as the one involved in the worst U.S. air disaster will be grounded at midnight, the U.S. Federal Aviation Administration announced today.

FAA Administrator Langhorne Bond issued the grounding order three days after an engine fell from the wing of an American Airlines DC-10 as the jumbo jet took off from O'Hare International Airport in Chicago.

All 271 persons aboard the Los Angeles-bound plane and two persons on the ground were killed Friday when the airliner flipped, crashed and burned. No Canadians were known to have been aboard the aircraft.

Bond also urged all foreign airlines operating DC-10s "to follow our urgent advice" and conduct similar inspections.

Laker Airways, which operates a charter service between Toronto and Gatwick Airport, London, England, said the airline operates six DC-10s which now are in the process of being grounded and checked.

In Ottawa, the federal transport department said today that it will not follow the United States and ground DC-10 aircraft.

There are three such aircraft in Canada.

However the transport department has asked Wardair to take special safety precautions on the two DC-10s it owns.

CP Air also has a DC-10 but it is not yet in service.

The plane's U.S. manufacturer, McDonnell-Douglas Corp., said approximately 275 DC-10s are in use by 41 airlines wordwide.

The delay until early Tuesday morning will help minimize disruption to U.S. Memorial Day holiday travellers, but Bond said schedules played no factor in the decision.

"As a practical matter, we didn't think word could get out . . . before that time," the FAA administrator told a news conference. He also press "the risk appears sufficiently small" that a similar incident could occur before Tuesday morning.

Dump gets Cullen secret papers

OTTAWA (CP) — A truckload of government documents from defeated Employment and Immigration Minister Bud Cullen's office has been discovered at a local dump.

In a front-page story today, The Citizen says Cullen and his staff ferreted through the piles early Saturday morning, then he told department security officials that he wanted the remainder burned or buried.

However, Citizen reporters, tipped that Cullen was at the Howard Rump Sand and Gravel pit at nearby Carp where the material was dumped, made off with several bags of documents.

Among the material was:

—A confidential 1976 exchange of letters between Cullen and former solicitor-general Warren Allmand concerning RCMP co-operation with the revenue department to fight organized crime. The exchange was the basis of testimony at royal commission hearings into RCMP wrongdoings.

—Applications by potential immigrants for landed status, and letters explaining that some could not qualify because of criminal records.

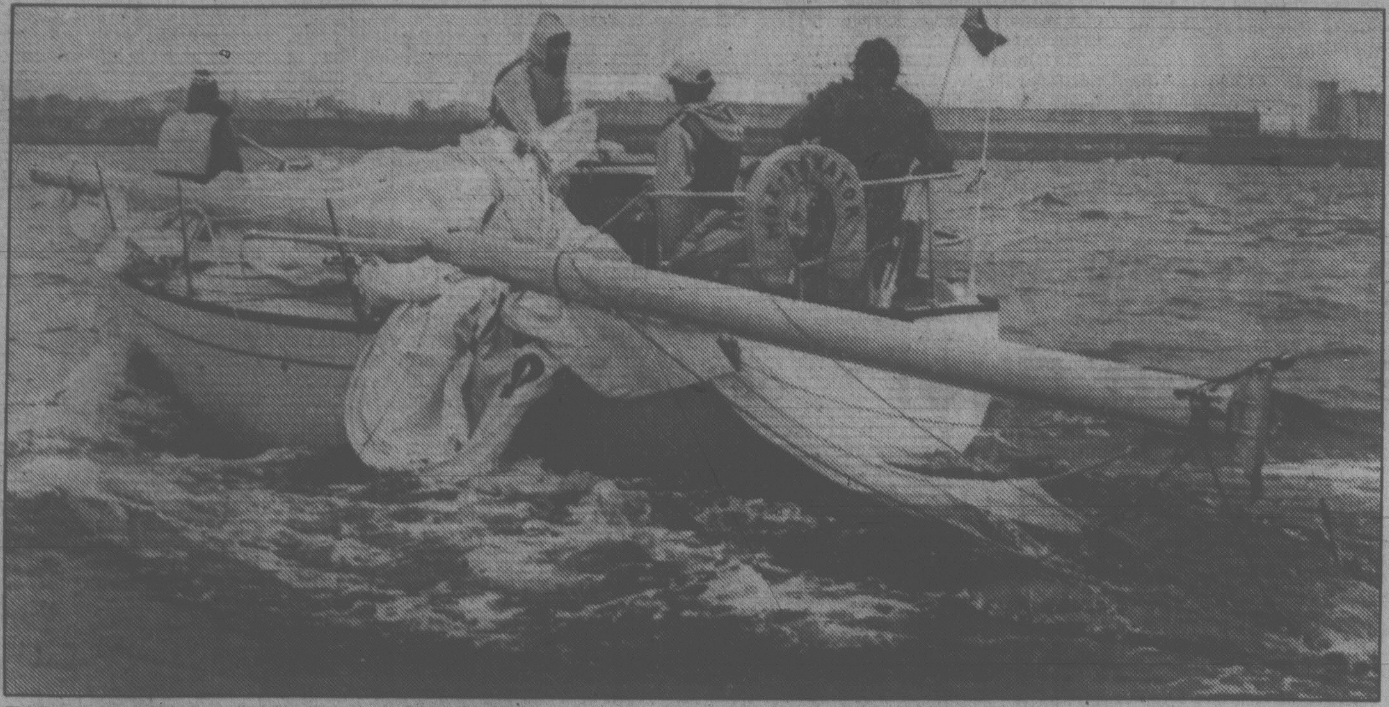
After going through the documents, reporters from the newspaper handed them over to police.

Reporters found several bags of shredded documents, piles of unused stationery, airline tickets and immigration department spending information.

One document was called The Garbage Book, which describes how to save energy and money by throwing less away.

Backlash from Nigerian curbs on tankers



EARLY CASUALTY of the Swiftsure sailing classic, the 28-foot sloop Moe-Tavator owned by David Moe of the Port Angeles Yacht Club, heads for Victoria after being dismasted before her race started. Entered in the smaller Juan de Fuca race, she was trying to round a navy committee boat on port tack. When she rounded the bow she couldn't see the 36-foot Swiftsure racer Mukluks, owned by H. Buckley of the Bellingham Yacht Club, bearing down on her on a starboard tack. There was no time for either boat to avoid a collision. The Mukluks received some damage but was able to carry on. U.S. oil in new danger

Times News Services

Nigeria, the United States' second largest source of foreign oil, has broadened boycott restrictions in a move that could trigger another U.S. oil supply crisis, Petroleum Intelligence Weekly reported today.

Nigeria, which exports about 1.1 million barrels of oil daily to the United States, has tightened boycott measures against South Africa, Rhodesia and Israel by imposing stringent rules on tankers that call at its ports.

The new rules prohibit tankers from entering Nigerian ports that have had any "contact" with the three blacklisted countries in the prior six-week to three-month period.

Nigeria is applying the new restrictions to Shell Oil Co. and British Petroleum Co. Ltd., which constitute Nigeria's main oil-producing venture.

The tougher boycott measures apparently affect some of Nigeria's direct crude oil customers but do not extend to U.S., French or Italian oil producers in the African nation, the publication said.

"Under U.S. anti-boycott laws, U.S. companies could not comply with the new Nigerian rules without violating U.S. law," sources told Petroleum Intelligence Weekly.

U.S. laws prohibit American firms from honoring secondary boycott rules designed to prevent business relationships with blacklisted countries or providing information to the boycotting nations on corporate dealings with blacklisted countries.

Meantime, Saudi Arabia has agreed to increase its oil production temporarily from 8.5 million to nine million barrels a day, Newsweek magazine said today.

The decision was made at the request of the United States, it said, "on the assumption that the political pressure on (President) Carter will ease if gasoline is more readily available."

One of Carter's top aides says the United States needs co-operation from oil-exporting countries in its fight to control inflation.

Stuart Eizenstat, assistant to the president for domestic affairs and policy, said Sunday the oil prices of the Organization of Petroleum Exporting Countries (OPEC) are a key factor in controlling inflation.

Asked whether he felt OPEC would co-operate, Eizenstat replied: "At this point, frankly, they have not shown that they are terribly interested in moderation."

OPEC prices have climbed 25 per cent since December, he said. OPEC ministers meet in Geneva, Switzerland, next month to discuss, among other things, a price increase.

Washington state motorists who worried about gasoline supplies over the Memorial Day weekend can expect to find more fuel available the rest of the week as service stations reopen, a dealer spokesman said.

"A lot of dealers have gas to sell, but they decided to

'Gold fever' still high

By MARK HUME

Diamond drills seeking proof of a gold mother-lode in the Queen Charlotte Islands are continuing to turn up significant traces around Juskatla Inlet, a mining company president said today.

Ken Sanders, whose Consolidated Cinola Mines Ltd. may be sitting on a fortune in high grade ore at the remote inlet, said that regular test drills are steadily proving out the find.

Sanders says diamond drills to probe the ore body are being sunk regularly and a full-time base camp has now been established at the site.

"We're continuing to diamond drill and the results are gratifying," he said.

Consolidated crews are piecing together a picture of a vast deposit of gold-bearing quartz that may or may not be rich enough to warrant a major mining operation.

Sanders said that a decision will likely be made in the very near future on whether or not to go ahead with a proposed massive open-pit mine.

"We're looking at that now. It's tempting to consider doing it right now . . . some people might consider that jumping the gun, but you could diamond drill forever."

Sanders, who got his knuckles rapped earlier this year for what the Vancouver Stock Exchange (VSE) called "higly promotional statements", is as enthusiastic as ever about the Charlotte gold.

"I think we've gotta helluva winner here," says Sand-

Pearce Arrow duels to win

Champagne toast aboard Greybeard

Winner of this year's blustery Swiftsure sailing classic and the coveted Swiftsure Trophy is the 35-foot sloop The Pearce Arrow, skippered by Ken Pearce of the Royal Vancouver Yacht Club.

Racing in the International Offshore Rule section, she went over the finish line at 12.33 p.m. Sunday.

She won by a scant 3½ minutes. Greg Oliver's 36-foot Distant Drummer of the Royal Victoria Yacht Club, finished before her but the time allowance she had to give the Vancouver boat lost her the race by the short time period.

Oliver won his division in both 1974 and 1976. This was his sixth Swiftsure.

Pearce and Oliver have been neck and neck in such races as the Southern Strait of Georgia.

First boat to finish in the gruelling 49th annual Swiftsure was Lol Killam's 73-foot ketch Graybeard of the Royal Vancouver Yacht Club. She crossed the line at 10.11 a.m. Sunday, capturing the City of Victoria Trophy.

It was the third time for Graybeard as the first boat home. This year she had to settle for one trophy while in 1973 and 1974 she swept the field, being the over-all winner, first boat home, first to round the Swiftsure mark and first in her division.

Throughout the 136.2 mile race Graybeard had fought a duel with the 12-metre Weatherly, owned by Lynn Sommers and Alan Buchan of the Tacoma Yacht Club.

Weatherly, which won the America's Cup in 1962, beat Graybeard around the Swiftsure mark by one minute at 9.08 p.m. Saturday but was half a mile behind Graybeard when the Vancouver boat reached Race Passage under spinnaker on the homeward leg.

Killam chose to sail inside the Race while Weatherly went outside looking for extra wind that never came.

Graybeard's crew made almost 40 sail changes in less than two hours in order to keep her moving.

A record fleet of 409 boats took part in Swiftsure and the smaller 75.6-mile Juan de Fuca race but the punishing gale-force winds that raached 57 knots at times took their toll.

A total of 108 boats were forced to withdraw, some dismasted in collisions, others with rudder and other gear failure.

For the first time in Swiftsure history one boat sank but there was no loss of life.

Sailing up the Strait of Juan de Fuca on Saturday, east of Pillar Point on the Washington side, W. F. Hester's 42-foot sloop Zuben'Ubi II of Seattle's Corinthian Yacht Club collided with G. Ross's 52-foot ketch Dorade of the Seattle Yacht Club.

The force of the collision was so great that a three-by-one foot hole was punched into the hull of Zuben'Ubi

Gold price climbs $5 to $275

LONDON (AP) — Gold rose almost $5 an ounce and hit a record $275.125 at mid-morning trading in Zurich today. The U.S. dollar also strengthened.

The opening quote for gold in Zurich was $272.125 an ounce, up from the previous high of $270.625 Friday. It then continued climbing.

Gold has risen more than $50 an ounce in the last month and dealers attribute it to the oil shortage, inflation, currency uncertainties and a shortage of gold on the market because of a reduction in sales by the International Monetary Fund and the U.S. Federal Reserve Board.

22 Belfast buses blasted by bombs

BELFAST (AP) — Twenty-two municipal buses were blown up in a bomb attack Sunday night, police reported today.

They said four armed and masked men held up an employee at the Ardoyne bus depot in northern Belfast and cleared the area before placing bombs on the buses.

Nine bombs exploded detroying 10 buses and damaging another 11, police said. They estimated that total damage was about £250,000 ($600,000).

Police said no one was injured.

On Saturday, the Provisonal wing of the Irish Republican Army (IRA) claimed responsibility for two bomb blasts at a Belfast rail terminal and another explosion on a passenger train running between Belfast and Londonderry.

Police said more than 100 passengers on the train escaped injury when they fled.

The Roman Catholic Provisionals have conducted regular attacks on Northern Ireland's rail network in their fight to end British rule and to have the predominantly Protestant region unite with the Irish republic to the south.

DC-10s grounded for bolt checks

WASHINGTON (AP) — All U.S.-operated DC-10 jetliners not yet inspected for weak engine bolts such as the one involved in the worst U.S. air disaster will be grounded at midnight, the U.S. Federal Aviation Administration announced today.

FAA Administrator Langhorne Bond issued the grounding order three days after an engine fell from the wing of an American Airlines DC-10 as the jumbo jet took off from O'Hare International Airport in Chicago.

All 271 persons aboard the Los Angeles-bound plane and two persons on the ground were killed Friday when the airliner flipped, crashed and burned. No Canadians were known to have been aboard the aircraft.

Bond also urged all foreign airlines operating DC-10s "to follow our urgent advice" and conduct similar inspections.

Laker Airways, which operates a charter service between Toronto and Gatwick Airport, London, England, said the airline operates six DC-10s which now are in the process of being grounded and checked.

In Ottawa, the federal transport department said today that it will not follow the United States and ground DC-10 aircraft.

There are three such aircraft in Canada.

However the transport department has asked Wardair to take special safety precautions on the two DC-10s it owns.

CP Air also has a DC-10 but it is not yet in service.

The plane's U.S. manufacturer, McDonnell-Douglas Corp., said approximately 275 DC-10s are in use by 41 airlines wordwide.

The delay until early Tuesday morning will help minimize disruption to U.S. Memorial Day holiday travellers, but Bond said schedules played no factor in the decision.

"As a practical matter, we didn't think word could get out . . . before that time," the FAA administrator told a news conference. He also said "the risk appears sufficiently small" that a similar incident could occur before Tuesday morning.
